Heavy Rains, Flooded Road Halt Truce Talk; Vital Decision Near

KAESONG, July 20 — Heavy rains caused a 24-hour postponement of a showdown meeting in the Korean truce talks today amid reports of the biggest Red troop concentrations in nearly three months along the war front.

The eighth session of the Kaesong cease-fire negotiations—pushed close to the breaking point by a Communist demand for withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea—was put off until 10 o'clock Saturday morning (7 p. m. Friday EST). A flash flood prevented the Allied delegation from reaching Kaesong Friday.

U. S. Eighth Army sources, meanwhile, reported that the Chinese and North Korean Reds now have 300,000 combat troops at the front or in immediate reserve. This was the largest enemy buildup noted since April 26 when the enemy's early Spring offensive was blunted.

Eighth Army officials said no Communist tanks have been observed in any significant numbers at or near the battle front. The heaviest current Red troop concentrations were spotted in the east-central sector north of Kumsong, 28 miles above Parallel 38, and in the area west of the "iron triangle."

SATURDAY MAY be the day of decision in the truce talks. The Allied representatives are expected to tell the Reds they must drop the troop evacuation issue if they want the conference to continue and peace to be restored in Korea.

The five North Korean and Chinese delegates arrived at the conference house in Kaesong sharply at 10 a. m. for what was to have been the eighth—and most important—session since the talks began July 10th.

By courier and radio-telephone, the Red delegation was notified of the Allied group's inability to reach Kaesong and it was agreed to put off the meeting one day.

By noon the heavy rains, which prevented the UN delegates from flying to Kaesong by helicopter, had stopped. At mid-afternoon, the announcement was made that the critical Kaesong negotiations will be resumed Saturday morning.

An advance motor convoy, including a truck carrying 20 Allied newsmen, managed to reach Kaesong early in the morning. The convoy returned to the armistice camp late in the afternoon as swollen streams receded and U. S. Army engineers worked to repair the flood-damaged Kaesong road.

The tension hanging over the armistice conference was reflected meanwhile in a Peiping broadcast charging that American planes violated Red China's borders by attacking targets in Manchuria since the Kaesong talks began.

PEIPING RADIO claimed American airmen reconnoitered, bombed and strafed Antung and other Manchurian towns between July 11th and 16th. The Kaesong negotiations were launched July 10th. Antung lies in the Chinese side of the Yalu river border between Manchuria and Korea.

The spokesman said that the delegation, headed by Vice

New Spanish Cabinet Put Into Office

Madrid May Get Another King

MADRID, July 20—A new Spanish cabinet, liberalized to placate the Western Powers and which may pave the way for a restoration of the monarchy, was sworn in today before Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Pardo Palace.

The basic policies of the Spanish leader are expected to be continued under the new government, which took the oath of office at noon.

Franco, who this week concluded a series of conferences with the U. S. chief of naval operations, Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, regarding American use of Spanish air and naval bases in event of war, is leaving for his summer residence in San Sebastian tomorrow.

The composition of the cabinet, enlarged from 12 to 16, was officially announced last night. It was viewed as a two-fold effort by the Spanish dictator to court the good will of the West—particularly the United States—and pacify the Royalists who have been demanding restoration of the monarchy.

THE GOVERNMENT reshuffled, expected for more than a week, came as a rapid sequel to mid-week conferences between Franco and Sherman.

In Washington, President Truman said the preliminary talks with Franco represented a distinct change in U. S. foreign policy. He revealed that a military-diplomatic mission soon will go to Madrid to draft a detailed pact with Spain.

The revamped cabinet also constituted a definite setback for the extreme Falangists, backbone of Franco's original movement. They are outspokenly opposed to the monarchy, and frequently of late have been in conflict with segments of the Catholic church.

The appointment of Fernando, Count of Valledano, as minister of public works and Antonio Iturmendi, minister of justice, was viewed as a Franco peace-offer to the Monarchists.

However, while both men are Royalists, they represent feuding factions. Iturmendi is regarded as a backer of the Bourbon pretender, Don Juan, who is in exile in Portugal. Valledano, on the other hand, is believed to have been included in the cabinet because he favors accession to the throne of Juan Carlos, the pretender's 13-year-old son.

The monarchy issue was clouded by a report last month that Franco had given Don Juan an ultimatum. That he abdicate in favor of his son.

A 1947 decree by Franco set down the conditions for the return of a king. The future monarch, he stipulated, would have to be Spanish, a male, at least 30 years old and a Roman Catholic.

Red Casualties Total 1,213,544

WASHINGTON, July 20—The Army estimated today that the Communists in Korea suffered 10,616 casualties from July 4 through July 13 to bring their total losses since the start of the war to 1,213,544.

Only 71 prisoners, all Chinese, were taken during the period. The Allies now hold 17,453 Chinese and 146,091 North Korean prisoners.

Adm. Charles Turner Joy, might then tell the world the reasons for the stand it has taken on the one major issue blocking completion of an agenda.

Up until late Friday, official UN sources both at the truce camp and in Tokyo had not yet made any public statements on the nature of that issue.

But they were aware of Secretary of State Acheson's disclosure in Washington that the Red delegates at Kaesong had demanded discussion of their proposal that all foreign forces be evacuated from Korea.

Acheson declared that UN troops will remain in Korea "until a genuine peace has been firmly established" and the Korean people are "free from the fear of aggression."

He made it clear the UN is prepared to break off the armistice talks unless the Communists halt their demand that the troop withdrawal question be placed on the agenda.

Payoff Told To Probers

Jersey Gambler Reveals Threats

WASHINGTON, July 20 — An Atlantic City gambler, testifying under a threat that he "would be rubbed out," told the Senate Crime Committee today that he made a $250 payoff to State Senator Frank S. Farley, reputed New Jersey political boss.

Francis E. Smith said the payoff to Farley was in 1949 and represented the remainder of a $500 assessment, the first half of which he had paid to a cafe operator, Biff Mahoney.

Smith was told after his testimony that a "Joe Ryan, a jewelry salesman," entered his store last night and told a girl to relay a message to him that he would be "rubbed out" if he testified against Herman Orman, reputed racketeer figure.

Smith left the witness stand with the promise that he and his family would be given full police protection and that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is looking into the incident.

SMITH SAID THAT in 1948 he opened what he called a "bump-and-run" game on the boardwalk, paid a license fee of $1000, and was told that a second $1000 would be required. He paid it, he said, to a Joe McBeth, who he said was then assistant county treasurer.

The direct link with Farley, political boss of Atlantic County, came the following year, Smith testified, when Mahoney came to him and said that Farley needed money, and "your share will be $500." Smith paid half of it to Mahoney, and promised the rest later.

New Vote Is Sought

Wage-Price Freeze Reversal Wanted

WASHINGTON, July 20—House administration leaders seek today to reverse a vote freezing wages and prices for four months as President Truman hinted that he may veto a weak controls bill.

Majority Whip Priest, (D) Tenn., predicted favorable action on a rollcall vote, but Rep. Davis, (D) Ga., sponsor of the amendment, expressed confidence that the House will sustain its voice vote decision.

The amendment pegs wages and salaries and the prices of most commodities, except foods, at July 7 levels for four months. Farm and food prices, however, would be permitted to rise.

Mr. Truman's veiled threat was contained in a letter to Mrs. C. Irving Guyer, a Springfield, Mass., housewife, in which he said that "if we can't beat off the lobbyists this time, we will just make a new start and try again."

THE PRESIDENT did not elaborate on his statement, but his utterances on previous occasions have led observers to believe that he may veto a bill that he considers to be too weak.

On the other hand, some observers believe the President may sign an "unsatisfactory" bill on the theory that some controls are better than none. Congress has extended the life of the present act only until July 31.

The Davis amendment drew the wrath of Price Chief DiSalle who said that it would force "several hundred thousand businesses to close down because they could not get price adjustments."

Administration leaders fear the principal effect of the Davis amendment, if allowed to remain in the bill, would be felt by organized labor.

They said that prices have become pretty well stabilized, at a record high level, but that wages have not yet reached the same level. Serious labor repercussions were feared if the amendment became law.

Arab Leader Felled Near His Church

Jordan Murder Is 2nd In Week

LONDON, July 20 — Reports that King Abdullah of Jordan has been assassinated reached the British Foreign Office today.

The reports were said to have "confirmed" the ruler's death, but there were few immediate details. The colorful ruler was reported to have been shot and killed while entering a mosque (church) in his mountain capital of Amman.

An Amman dispatch said that Abdullah was killed instantly when his assassin fired from behind the main gate of the mosque.

The assassin was identified as Mustafa Shukri Ashshu, a tailor who, during the Arab-Jewish war, belonged to a "dynamite squad" attached to irregular Arab forces. Ashshu was killed by Abdullah's bodyguard.

Abdullah will be given a state funeral Monday and buried in the royal cemetery near the Amman palace.

The Foreign Office reports said that Abdullah's son, Prince Naif, was appointed regent and a state of emergency was declared throughout the nation.

Abdullah, a staunch friend of Great Britain and one of the leaders of the Arab League which bitterly opposed foundation of the new state of Israel, was 68.

The report followed by less than a week the assassination of Premier Riad Es-Solh, one of the founders of the Lebanese republic, while on his way to the Amman airport after a conference with Abdullah.

ES-SOLH WAS SHOT to death by two men who overtook him in a car while he was traveling in Abdullah's personal limousine. (Continued on Page Two)

Conservancy Court Resumes Flood Studies

The Scioto-Sandusky conservancy court convened Friday in Columbus to consider the official plan submitted by the conservancy board for the flood-control development of the 17-county area.

The plan calls for the eventual construction of four more flood-control dams in addition to the completion of the Delaware County dam and the Rocky Fork dam in Highland County now under construction by the state.

The new dams would be on Deer Creek, Big Darby, Mill Creek and Paint Creek. The district extends from Sandusky on Lake Erie to Portsmouth on the Ohio river.

Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge William Radcliff is one of the 17 judges making up the court.

CRISIS EXPECTED MONDAY

Mighty Mississippi Tops Levees In St. Louis Area

ST. LOUIS, July 20 — Rising waters of the worst Missouri and Mississippi river floods in more than 100 years breached two levees and topped two others in the St. Louis area today.

The angry, muddy waters meanwhile pounded other still-intact but weakening dikes above St. Louis as the Missouri raced toward a junction with the already-swollen mighty Mississippi.

Authorities expressed fear that flood damage in the St. Louis area might run as high as $9 million, a figure equalling the property loss caused by the great 1947 flood.

An estimated 1,000 persons, including children, were evacuated from the areas where the levees were breached and topped. Many others, including a mother of eight children, refused to leave their homes in the belief that they will be safe.

COAST GUARDSMEN

touring the flood zone, reported the mother waved and yelled: "Go away. We're all right. The river isn't going up any higher."

The woman, who was not identified, was holding a baby in her arms.

Meanwhile, the city's 1,600,000 residents continued to go about their normal business although fires and explosions remains.

concern mounted as the Mississippi cracked levees in towns all around the metropolitan center. A crisis is not expected until Monday when the Missouri will pour its giant crest into its sister river—building up a predicted 40.5 crest, highest since 1844.

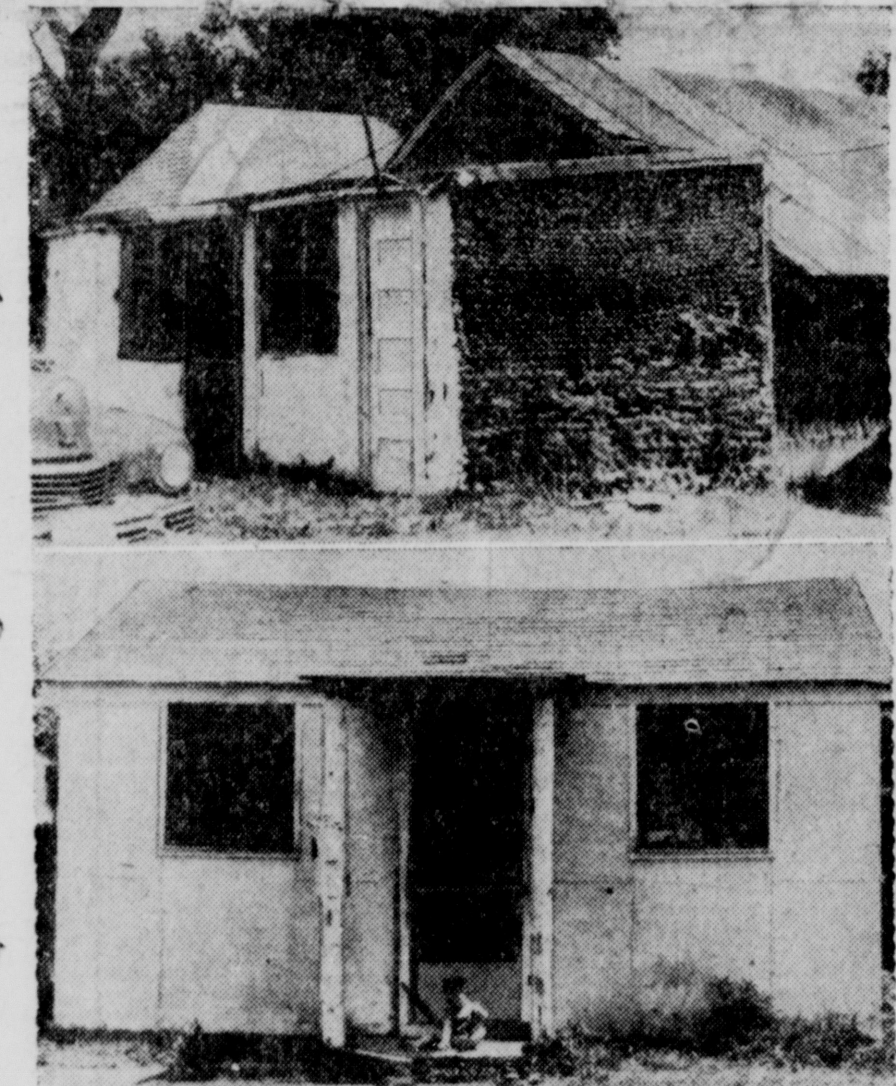

Attention of the American people was directed to the disaster area last night in the launching of the Red Cross' first special national appeal for disaster relief since 1938.

President Truman kicked off the drive with a plea for contributions of at least $5 million to aid flood victims in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Illinois.

Latest to feel the brunt of the rampaging waters were residents of three St. Louis area towns—West Alton, Creve Coeur Lake and St. Charles.

Red Cross officials already have listed the flood death toll at 26 in the battered Missouri and Kansas areas. They estimate the homeless in Missouri alone at 29,000 persons. About 17,551 persons still are being housed by the Red Cross and 45,880 are being fed in 80 shelters.

Business has returned to normal in the twin Kansas Cities—hardest hit in the record flood—but the danger of new fires and explosions remains.

"HIDEOUS HOVELS" is the term used by members of a Senate preparedness subcommittee after an investigation of housing conditions faced by servicemen and their families in three training camps. Civilian "gougers" were lashed by angry senators who told of makeshift lodgings where military personnel slept with lights on to keep children from being bitten by rats. At top, a small shack at Camp Breckinridge is built of mortar and whiskey bottles, beer cans and whitewash. At bottom a child plays on the steps of a house the roof of which is propped up by old pipes.

THE "CINDERELLA FAMILY" of Jersey Joe Walcott is all big smiles as two youngest children, Vincent, 11, and Carol, 6, "crown" a photo of the new heavyweight champ and his manager, Felix Bocchicchio, at home in Camden, N. ## Lockbourne Commander Says Base To Be Permanent One

As far as the U. S. Airforce is concerned, Lockbourne Air Base is a permanent installation.

Airforce plans call for permanent facilities, long-term programs and continual preventive maintenance. If the big Franklin-Pickaway county military installation is abandoned and falls into decay, it will not do so with Airforce approval.

That was the promise made to Central Ohio newsmen at a special briefing Thursday by the Lockbourne base commander, Col. George W. Humbrecht.

Colonel Humbrecht, accompanied by his staff, gave the newsmen a fill-in tour on the extensive building and re-building jobs now underway and scheduled.

In addition, the colonel, a 36-year-old career Airforce officer, explained the basic functions to which Lockbourne will be put.

At present, Lockbourne construction jobs run in the vicinity of $20 million. Of this amount, about $1 million is being expended on rehabilitation of existing buildings.

Colonel Humbrecht explained that the structure stood idle for a number of years and deterioration was exacting an alarming toll on the installation.

To combat this, officials are repairing and patching. At every turn, observers noted a new door here, new window there, numerous weather boarding patches and replacement of supporting pillars.

Old buildings are being used without being demolished and the work is being pushed rapidly. The colonel declared: "Our rehabilitation cost of $1 million is being spent cautiously. I can assure you that we are getting a lot for our money."

The major new installation is the base's main runway which will be in excess of 10,000 feet in length when completed. Along with this runway, concrete aprons are being poured. These vast areas of cement will be used for parking the many jet bomber aircraft due to start arriving at Lockbourne in September.

While Lockbourne officials were not in a position to reveal too many details, they indicated that the land now being purchased in the northern part of Pickaway County will be used for two purposes:

1. A new ordinance area.
2. Barracks and family housing for Airforce personnel.

lies will be transferred from other stations to Lockbourne in late Summer or early Fall.

Adequate housing for these incoming family men is not now available although Lockbourne officials said that all current assignees had found housing in communities surrounding Lockbourne.

The new contingent will, like the base as a whole, be assigned to the Airforce's Strategic Air Command. It will be equipped with heavy multi-jet bombers.

But the planes will not carry bombs. Instead, they will be equipped with cameras.

Colonel Humbrecht, who amassed an enviable record during World War II, is one of the Airforce's top brains in the field of reconnaissance. Purpose of the incoming squadrons will be to provide the bomb-carrying units of the Strategic Air Command with the information they need to carry out their missions.

Thus, Lockbourne will be loaded with the cream of the Airforce's brains in the field of planning and evaluation of vital attacks—if and when the gong sounds.

These reconnaissance crews provide bombers with two phases of information—before and after the attack. They will tell bombers what the target looks like before a strike and just what the score is after the bomb-drop.

Colonel Humbrecht, emphasizing that the installation is a permanent one, said that units of his command will come and go on various assignments.

But Lockbourne is home base. Crews will return. In view of this "at home" philosophy, the Lockbourne commanding officer has issued a 20-page pamphlet to all incoming personnel "to facilitate adjustment" to the new station.

In part, the colonel tells the newcomers:

1. The present 110 sets of apartments on the base are rapidly being put into condition. Of the total, 36 sets are for officers, 74 for airmen.

2. Outside housing rental for the most part is slightly higher than those at Shreveport, La., where most of the airmen were last stationed. This is due to sturdier construction and elaborate heating systems. Majority of rental properties accept children. Pets, however, increase difficulties.

3. The base hospital is rapidly being expanded to include full services for airmen's dependents. 4. Prices at the commissary sales store are about 23 percent lower than at stations in the South. This is "because the Columbus area has the lowest food price index of any major American city."

5. One base chapel is open, a second is being rehabilitated.

6. "Our civilian neighbors are... cooperating wholeheartedly in helping our personnel adjust to this new station. . . . These new neighbors of ours have an excellent opinion of us. Don't. . . do anything to destroy that good opinion."

In an effort to better acquaint the general public with functions at Lockbourne, an "open house" will be held Aug. 4-5. It will climax a drive by the Airforce Aid Society, a charity group within the Airforce which provides emergency help for its airmen. For the most part, financial aid is given in the form of a loan. In many cases, however, assistance is given outright.

Starting Saturday, Lockbourne boosters are to circulate in the area seeking donations toward a Lockbourne goal of $20,000.

Airforce solicitors will have proper identification to show upon request.

The fund drive will reach its peak during the "open house" program on the base Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 4 and 5. Nationally known entertainers will appear. Of the many prizes to be given away, a 1951 sedan will be the top one. A beauty queen will be chosen to reign over the festivities. In addition, an air show, carnival and dancing are on the program.

Conservancy Court Resumes Flood Studies

The Scioto-Sandusky conservancy court convened Friday in Columbus to consider the official plan submitted by the conservancy board for the flood-control development of the 17-county area.

The plan calls for the eventual construction of four more flood-control dams in addition to the completion of the Delaware County dam and the Rocky Fork dam in Highland County now under construction by the state.

The new dams would be on Deer Creek, Big Darby, Mill Creek and Paint Creek. The district extends from Sandusky on Lake Erie to Portsmouth on the Ohio river.

Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge William Radcliff is one of the 17 judges making up the court.

CRISIS EXPECTED MONDAY

Mighty Mississippi Tops Levees In St. Louis Area

ST. LOUIS, July 20 — Rising waters of the worst Missouri and Mississippi river floods in more than 100 years breached two levees and topped two others in the St. Louis area today.

The angry, muddy waters meanwhile pounded other still-intact but weakening dikes above St. Louis as the Missouri raced toward a junction with the already-swollen mighty Mississippi.

Authorities expressed fear that flood damage in the St. Louis area might run as high as $9 million, a figure equalling the property loss caused by the great 1947 flood.

An estimated 1,000 persons, including children, were evacuated from the areas where the levees were breached and topped. Many others, including a mother of eight children, refused to leave their homes in the belief that they will be safe.

COAST GUARDSMEN, touring the flood zone, reported the mother waved and yelled:

"Go away. We're all right. The river isn't going up any higher." The woman, who was not identified, was holding a baby in her arms.

Meanwhile, the city's 1,600,000 residents continued to go about their normal business although concern mounted as the Mississippi cracked levees in towns all around the metropolitan center. A crisis is not expected until Monday when the Missouri will pour its giant crest into its sister river—building up a predicted 40.5 crest, highest since 1844.

Attention of the American people was directed to the disaster area last night in the launching of the Red Cross' first special national appeal for disaster relief since 1938.

President Truman kicked off the drive with a plea for contributions of at least $5 million to aid flood victims in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Illinois.

Latest to feel the brunt of the rampaging waters were residents of three St. Louis area towns—West Alton, Creve Coeur Lake and St. Charles.

Red Cross officials already have listed the flood death toll at 26 in the battered Missouri and Kansas areas. They estimate the homeless in Missouri alone at 29,000 persons. About 17,551 persons still are being housed by the Red Cross and 45,880 are being fed in 80 shelters.

Business has returned to normal in the twin Kansas Cities—hardest hit in the record flood—but the danger of new fires and explosions remains.

"HIDEOUS HOVELS" is the term used by members of a Senate preparedness subcommittee after an investigation of housing conditions faced by servicemen and their families in three training camps. Civilian "gougers" were lashed by angry soldiers who told of makeshift lodgings where military personnel slept with lights on to keep children from being bitten by rats. At top, a small shack at Camp Breckinridge is built of mortar and whiskey bottles, beer cans and whitewash. At bottom a child plays on the steps of a house the roof of which is propped up by old pipes.

Lockbourne Commander Says Base To Be Permanent One

As far as the U. S. Airforce is concerned, Lockbourne Air Base is a permanent installation.

Airforce plans call for permanent facilities, long-term programs and continual preventive maintenance. If the big Franklin-Pickaway county military installation is abandoned and falls into decay, it will not do so with Airforce approval.

That was the promise made to Central Ohio newsmen at a special briefing Thursday by the Lockbourne base commander, Col. George W. Humbrecht.

Colonel Humbrecht, accompanied by his staff, gave the newsmen a fill-in tour on the extensive building and re-building jobs now underway and scheduled.

In addition, the colonel, a 36-year-old career Airforce officer, explained the basic functions to which Lockbourne will be put.

At present, Lockbourne construction jobs run in the vicinity of $20 million. Of this amount, about $1 million is being expended on rehabilitation of existing buildings.

Colonel Humbrecht explained that the structure stood idle for a number of years and deterioration was exacting an alarming toll on the installation.

To combat this, officials are repairing and patching. At every turn, observers noted a new door here, new window there, numerous weather boarding patches and replacement of supporting pillars.

Old buildings are being used without being demolished and the work is being pushed rapidly.

The colonel declared: "Our rehabilitation cost of $1 million is being spent cautiously. I can assure you that we are getting a lot for our money."

The major new installation is the base's main runway which will be in excess of 10,000 feet in length when completed. Along with this runway, concrete aprons are being poured. These vast areas of cement will be used for parking the many jet bomber aircraft due to start arriving at Lockbourne in September.

While Lockbourne officials were not in a position to reveal too many details, they indicated that the land now being purchased in the northern part of Pickaway County will be used for two purposes:

1. A new ordnance area.
2. Barracks and family housing for Airforce personnel.

Concerning the latter point, it is understood that 700 to 900 Airforce career men and their families will be transferred from other stations to Lockbourne in late Summer or early Fall.

Adequate housing for these incoming family men is not now available although Lockbourne officials said that all current assignees had found housing in communities surrounding Lockbourne.

The new contingent will, like the base as a whole, be assigned to the Airforce's Strategic Air Command. It will be equipped with heavy multi-jet bombers.

But the planes will not carry bombs. Instead, they will be equipped with cameras.

Colonel Humbrecht, who amassed an enviable record during World War II, is one of the Airforce's top brains in the field of reconnaissance.

Purpose of the incoming squadrons will be to provide the bomb-carrying units of the Strategic Air Command with the information they need to carry out their missions.

Thus, Lockbourne will be loaded with the cream of the Airforce's brains in the field of planning and evaluation of vital attacks—if and when the gong sounds.

These reconnaissance crews provide bombers with two phases of information—before and after the attack. They will tell bombers what the target looks like before a strike and just what the score is after the bomb-drop.

Colonel Humbrecht, emphasizing that the installation is a permanent one, said that units of his command will come and go on various assignments.

But Lockbourne is home base. Crews will return. In view of this "at home"

philosophy, the Lockbourne commanding officer has issued a 20-page pamphlet to all incoming personnel "to facilitate adjustment" to the new station.

In part, the colonel tells the newcomers:

1. The present 110 sets of apartments on the base are rapidly being put into condition. Of the total, 36 sets are for officers, 74 for airmen.

2. Outside housing rental for the most part is slightly higher than those at Shreveport, La., where most of the airmen were last stationed. This is due to sturdier construction and elaborate heating systems. Majority of rental properties accept children. Pets, however, increase difficulties.

3. The base hospital is rapidly being expanded to include full services for airmen's dependents.

4. Prices at the commissary sales store are about 23 percent lower than at stations in the South. This is "because the Columbus area has the lowest food price index of any major American city."

5. One base chapel is open, a second is being rehabilitated.

6. "Our civilian neighbors in the nearby communities are... cooperating wholeheartedly in helping our personnel adjust to this new station. . . . These new neighbors of ours have an excellent opinion of us. Don't... do anything to destroy that good opinion."

In an effort to better acquaint the general public with functions at Lockbourne, an "open house" will be held Aug. 4-5.

It will climax a drive by the Airforce Aid Society, a charity group within the Airforce which provides emergency help for its airmen. For the most part, financial aid is given in the form of a loan. In many cases, however, assistance is given outright.

Starting Saturday, Lockbourne boosters are to circulate in the area seeking donations toward a Lockbourne goal of $20,000.

Airforce solicitors will have proper identification to show upon request.

The fund drive will reach its peak during the "open house" program on the base Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 4 and 5. Nationally known entertainers will appear. Of the many prizes to be given away, a 1951 sedan will be the top one. A beauty queen will be chosen to reign over the festivities. In addition, an air show, carnival and dancing are on the program.

Arab Leader Felled Near His Church

He was shot in the chest and neck.

A Palestinian named Mohamed Salah and a Lebanese subject identified as Mihail El-Dik were blamed for the Es-Soh killing.

The latter was killed immediately by guards and Mohamed Salah died later. Es-Soh had been marked for death by a political group which held him responsible for the execution in 1949 of the Syrian National Socialist leader, Anton Saadeh.

This faction has been identified as a strongly nationalist organization which is still a powerful element and favors creation of an all-Syrian state embracing virtually all of the Middle and Near East.

Abdullah—officially the Emir Abdullah Ibn Hussein—has been one of the most colorful Arabian rulers of modern times.

He was born in Mecca in 1882, second son of the late King Hussein of the Hedjaz.

Since 1921, he had been ruler of Trans-Jordan under British mandate and served as an honorary commodore of the Royal Air Force during World War II.

ABDULLAH, a long-time champion of Arab rights in Palestine, was one of the pioneers in establishment of the Arab League, whose troops fought bitterly with Israeli troops in the early days of establishment of the Israeli state.

His fierce warriors engaged in many long and bitter clashes with the Israelis in Jerusalem, Jericho and elsewhere and bore the brunt of most battles when forces of King Farouk failed to stand up in the Negev Desert.

While Abdullah lived in Oriental splendor in the remote fastness of Amman, he was an intensely modern ruler, active in sports and in the international scene.

Hillsboro Man Is Cited In 1950 Accident

An accident which happened almost a year ago near New Holland was brought back to light Friday and a Hillsboro Route 4 man is being held on two accusations of leaving scenes of accidents.

Henry Carter, 43, of Hillsboro Route 4, was taken into custody Friday by State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells after being released from Cincinnati workhouse.

Patrolman Wells said the accident in question happened Oct. 22, 1950, about one mile east of New Holland. The patrolman said an auto allegedly operated by Carter was travelling east on the highway.

Wells said the Carter car sideswiped a westbound auto operated by Wilbur Coy of New Holland, then travelled down the highway to sideswipe an approaching car operated by D. J. Gilluley of Lancaster.

Carter is accused of having failed to stop after both accidents. Coy, following the mishap, travelled to New Holland to file charges, while Gilluley filed in Circleville. Hearings on the pair of accusations were expected to have been held late Friday.

The patrolman said Carter was sought by the patrol following the mishap, but that the patrol was unable to complete arrest. On April 30 the man was arrested by Chillicothe highway patrol and fined $200 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in Cincinnati workhouse for drunken driving.

Autoists Using Dimes Lose Out On Park Meters

Many motorists who visit the downtown business district in Circleville are not getting their money's worth out of the parking meters.

Abe Greenlee, special officer in charge of meters in Circleville, Friday reported that many persons are cheating themselves at the meters.

"I get about $6 a week in dimes from the meters," Greenlee said. Friday's collection for the last four days yielded $2.40 in dimes.

Circleville's meters are not designed for 10-cent pieces, although they will give two hours' parking time for two nickels or 10 pennies.

Greenlee said the 10-cent pieces give the motorist only one hour of legal parking. Based on the $6 average collection per week, motorists are losing 60 hours of parking which they have paid for by using dimes instead of pennies and nickels.

"I suppose most people don't want to bother getting change," Greenlee said. "Either that or they mistake the dimes for the white pennies put out during the last war."

Greenlee said the largest number of dimes are collected after the Saturday shoppers visit the downtown area.

Hillsboro Man Is Cited In 1950 Accident

An accident which happened almost a year ago near New Holland was brought back to light Friday and a Hillsboro Route 4 man is being held on two accusations of leaving scenes of accidents.

Henry Carter, 43, of Hillsboro Route 4, was taken into custody Friday by State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells after being released from Cincinnati workhouse.

Patrolman Wells said the accident in question happened Oct. 22, 1950, about one mile east of New Holland. The patrolman said an auto allegedly operated by Carter was travelling east on the highway.

Wells said the Carter car sideswiped a westbound auto operated by Wilbur Coy of New Holland, then travelled down the highway to sideswipe an approaching car operated by D. J. Gilluley of Lancaster.

Carter is accused of having failed to stop after both accidents. Coy, following the mishap, travelled to New Holland to file charges, while Gilluley filed in Circleville. Hearings on the pair of accusations were expected to have been held late Friday.

The patrolman said Carter was sought by the patrol following the mishap, but that the patrol was unable to complete arrest. On April 30 the man was arrested by Chillicothe highway patrol and fined $200 and costs, and sentenced to 60 days in Cincinnati workhouse for drunken driving.

Autoists Using Dimes Lose Out On Park Meters

Many motorists who visit the downtown business district in Circleville are not getting their money's worth out of the parking meters.

Abe Greenlee, special officer in charge of meters in Circleville, Friday reported that many persons are cheating themselves at the meters.

"I get about $6 a week in dimes from the meters," Greenlee said. Friday's collection for the last four days yielded $2.40 in dimes.

Circleville's meters are not designed for 10-cent pieces, although they will give two hours' parking time for two nickels or 10 pennies.

Greenlee said the 10-cent pieces give the motorist only one hour of legal parking. Based on the $6 average collection per week, motorists are losing 60 hours of parking which they have paid for by using dimes instead of pennies and nickels.

"I suppose most people don't want to bother getting change," Greenlee said. "Either that or they mistake the dimes for the white pennies put out during the last war."

Greenlee said the largest number of dimes are collected after the Saturday shoppers visit the downtown area.

Lithuanian Riot Against Soviet Control Claimed

WASHINGTON, July 20—Underground reports reaching Washington said that a serious riot in Lithuania against Soviet Control has resulted in 40 Lithuanians being killed or injured.

Similar reports of unrest in two Baltic states—Latvia and Estonia—were also received by the department.

These states, which gained their independence after World War I, were gobbled up by the Soviet Union shortly after Hitler invaded Poland in 1939.

At that time the Soviet Union set up Communist regimes.

Later Germany overran the Baltic states, after declaring war on Russia. The residents of the Baltic states never accepted either German or Soviet control.

AFTER THE second World War and after their liberation from Nazi control, they found Soviet domination even more difficult.

The riot, which occurred in the Lithuanian capital of Vilna, was said to have resulted in a pitched battle between 200 workers in a factory manufacturing military equipment and members of the Red secret police.

The secret police were said to have decreed longer working hours for the laborers, who were ordered to produce more shoes for the Soviet Army without any pay increase.

The report to the state department said:

"When the workers protested, ten of their number were denounced by Communist activists within the factory. Fighting between the workmen and the Soviet police followed. Militia finally quelled the uprising.

"During the fighting, workers also managed to burn down the factory's leather storehouse and to damage a number of valuable machines.

The report said that 40 Lithuanian workers were killed or injured while several Soviet police were wounded.

Teen Tips

Boys, look what this high school girl says about you. Her letter reveals exactly how you can increase your popularity with the fair sex and be a smoother date.

"I am almost 17 and have a good personality, am a good listener, try to have good manners and get along with girl friends very well. But with boys, it's a different story.

"I do go out with boys occasionally, but don't enjoy myself because they seem silly and act so smart and are rude or rough with no manners. I try to attend the 'teen dances' around here and the school dances, but the boys act silly and embarrass me.

"I have met some boys I liked, but they go steady or are engaged. My friends tell me I'm too fussy and that there are hardly any nice-mannered boys in this city. What would you advise me to do?"

"A good man is hard to find," goes the saying, but keep on going to dances and other social affairs for high schoolers and eventually you'll meet a boy whose company you'll enjoy without rudeness and embarrassment.

Why not ask a girl friend to include you in a double date now and then to help you meet take her to the movies or introduce her to the return. . . take her to the movies or introduce her to your brother, cousin or a boy she might like to know.

How about sports and school club activities? Don't overlook chances to have fun and make friends on a tennis or badminton court, swimming, bowling or next Fall in the school orchestra or photography club.

Perhaps there's a young people's group in your church where you would meet nice boys.

Sherman Plans British Talks

LONDON, July 20—Adm. Forrest P. Sherman arrived in London today to confer with British Fleet Admiral Lord Fraser. He refused to comment on his Madrid talks with General Franco which reportedly led to agreement for the use of Spanish bases.

The U.S. chief of naval operations brushed aside a question on whether Spain now is "in the Western bag" with a bluff, "you know the answer to that."

Sherman flew from Paris, where he held what he termed "very profitable" discussions with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Vice-Admiral Henri Nomy, chief of the French naval staff.

Early Surgery Recommended For Polio Patients

CHICAGO, July 20—A specialist urged parents today to accept early surgery—when doctors recommend it—for their poliostrophic children as a means of speeding recovery and warding off deformity.

All too often, the expert commented, physical therapy (muscle training) is continued for one or two years and then surgery is necessary anyway.

Dr. Charles L. Lowman, emeritus chief of staff at the Los Angeles orthopedic hospital, said surgical re-arrangement of poliostrophic bone or muscle may sometimes prove beneficial as early as the third or fourth month of the convalescent stage.

He added: "Parents naturally wish to avoid surgery, and sometimes it is possible to continue muscle training for a considerable period with a chance of recovery. "But when early surgery is clearly indicated, it in no way jeopardizes outcome. In fact, it frequently wards off deformity and improves the ultimate result.

"Such intervention will save the time spent in hospital or convalescent home and the time of all persons involved in the care of the patient."

How about sports and school club activities? Don't overlook chances to have fun and make friends on a tennis or badminton court, swimming, bowling or next Fall in the school orchestra or photography club.

Perhaps there's a young people's group in your church where you would meet nice boys. For tips on the care of dry hair and dandruff, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper for a reply.

Ohio May Take Over River Locks

Muskingum Tour Set For Tuesday

COLUMBUS, July 20 — State officials are to tour the area between Zanesville and Marietta with U. S. Army engineers next Tuesday in an effort to determine whether Ohio should run the Muskingum River locks there.

The federal government has said it will abandon some of the locks next month and the remainder before the end of the year.

Ohio's representatives will include Public Works Director Samuel O. Linzell; Lee Blackburn, an engineer in Linzell's office, and officials of the natural resources department.

Their tour will be the start of a survey designed to establish whether Ohio can assume the financial burdens inherent in running the locks.

Army engineers said at a recent conference with Governor Lausche the monthly outlay for the operation is $135,000 and that $800,000 will have to be spent on repairs in the next 10 years.

However, some state officials feel Ohio might be able to make the project pay for itself and even show a profit through the sale of industrial water supplies and the negotiation of leases. This has been accomplished in the case of the old Ohio Canal lands.

Other persons believe that industries in the district might be persuaded to pay directly for the lock operations.

Lengthy Appeal Being Planned

PAINESVILLE, July 20 — Attorneys for Victor Justinger, convicted torch slayer, have filed a foot-thick bill of exceptions in Lake County common pleas court in preparation for an appeal to the seventh district court of appeals.

Justinger was sentenced to life imprisonment for the torch slaying of his friend, Tommy Eggleston.

Earl Petterson and Lester Donaldson, Justinger's attorneys, filed the bill of exceptions as part of an appeal from a decision on June 19 by Common Pleas Judge W. S. Slocum overruling a motion for a new trial.

Like To Lead An Expedition?

STUEBENVILLE, July 20 — Like to lead an expedition to the Arctic?

The expedition is ready except for a leader. The party, scheduled to leave tomorrow, had to postpone the trip when the leader, Ornithologist Forrest Buchanan, withdrew because of an illness in his family.

The Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society is sponsoring the trip, to collect specimens of mammals, insects, birds and fish from the Hudson's bay area for its museum in Columbus.

37th Division Starts 'Attack'

CAMP MCCOY, July 20 — Ohio's 37th Infantry Division of the National Guard is locked in simulated combat today in Wisconsin.

The division is attacking heights controlling the southern part of Camp McCoy, the huge military reservation where the Ohio Guardsmen are going through stiff maneuvers.

The heights are being held by one Ohio combat team made up of some 500 troops wearing "aggressor" uniforms.

Living Together as Neighbors

"LOVE IS THE FULFILLING OF THE LAW," SAID ST. PAUL.

Scripture—Matthew 23:31-46; Acts 6:1-7; Romans 12:9-21; 13:8-10.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
THERE SURELY never was a more timely subject for a lesson than the above heading. Nations cannot agree, and their spokesmen spend their time in vilifying other nations. It is not unusual for neighbors to disagree so violently that they will not speak to one another.

Husbands and wives, lovers, and children fight. Even churches are rent with disagreements. A great moral awakening is needed for the entire world.

Today's lesson should help each one of us to live that we live with our neighbors—and by that we do mean only our immediate neighbors, but what Jesus meant by "neighbor" when He told the story of the good Samaritan.

St. Matthew tells of the time when Jesus shall return to judge the earth, and separate the sheep from the goats—the good from the evil. To those on His right, the sheep, He gives His blessing and told them that they—the 12—were so busy teaching, praying and preaching—ministering to the spiritual needs of the people, that they had no time for seeing that secular affairs were administered correctly.

They therefore chose seven men—one of whom was Stephen, soon to be martyred—to take care of the matter. The seven were dedicated for their task with the "laying on of hands," and the affair was settled in the Christian manner.

What are the rules for Christian living? St. Paul gives them to us in easily read form in his letters to the Romans. Let us read them often, meditate upon them, and pause before we act when tensions arise with others, to ask ourselves how we, as Christians, should speak and act.

"Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good."

"Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another." It

MEMORY VERSE

"Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these My brethren, even these least, ye did it unto Me."—Matthew 25:40.

and tells them that when He was hungry they fed Him; when He was thirsty they gave Him to drink; when naked they clothed Him; when ill or in prison they visited him; when He was a stranger they took Him in.

Surprised they asked Him when they did all those things? and the Lord replied, that "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

In a world where there are so many hungry, naked, ill, unjustly imprisoned, destitute—there are limitless opportunities to help. Thank God there are many good people who are opening their hearts and homes and taking other measures to alleviate suffering.

Our newspapers and magazines show pictures of happy looking people—many children among them—who are being brought to our shores to live a new life in a free country where they are safe and will be provided for. Food and clothing are being shipped abroad, but much more needs to be done.

Included in our lesson is an episode of the early Christian church. At that time, there were many Greek Jews in the organization. The needs of all the widows were being taken care of, but the Greeks complained that their widows were not getting their fair share.

The 12 apostles called a meeting of all the church members is always a difficult thing to put others before ourselves. It is comparatively easy to console with people when they are in trouble; but to rejoice with them when they are put ahead of us takes more character—more prayerful wrestling with our envious selves.

"Bless them that persecute you; bless, and curse not."

"Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men."

"If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men."

"Do not overcome evil, but overcome evil with good."

"Owe to no man anything, but to love one another; for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."

"For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is this saying, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

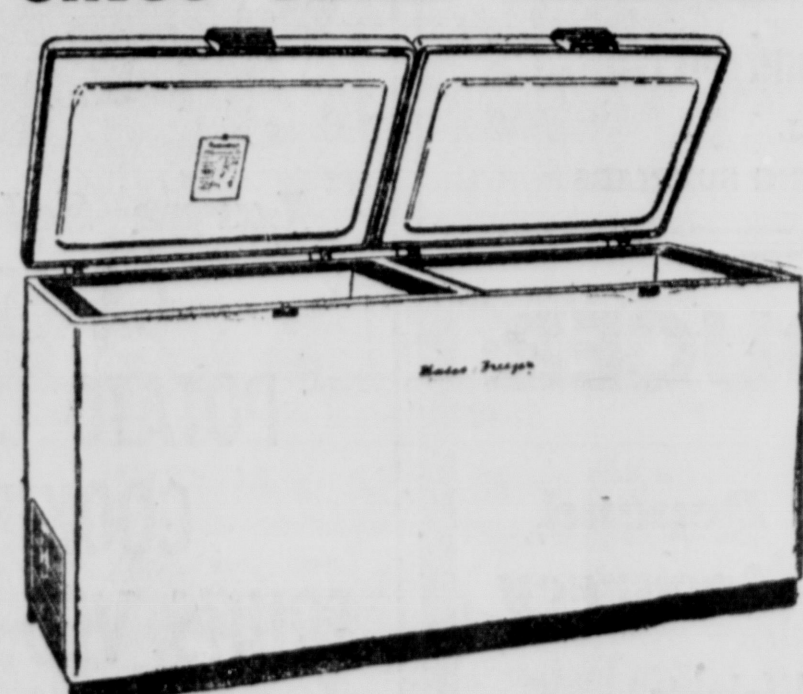

St. Martin, whose act of charity illustrates our Memory Verse, was a humble disciple of the church, born about 316 A. D. He gave his cloak to a poor man, and that night he had a vision of Jesus, and shortly thereafter was baptized. He rose to be a bishop in the church.

Ex-Crown Prince Dies Quietly In Germany Home

HECHINGEN, July 20 — Ex-Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, whom fate denied the chance to rule Germany, died today of a heart ailment at his home in Hechingen, Wuertemberg.

The 69-year-old son of the late Kaiser Wilhelm had been ill for weeks.

A direct descendant of the famous Hohenzollern family that once ruled much of Europe, Wilhelm's illness had gone virtually unnoticed by the German public.

The man, who would have become Kaiser Wilhelm III had it not been for World War I and the collapse of the monarchy, spent his last years in quiet retirement in Hechingen, at the foot of the fairy tale Castle Burg Hohenzollern — in which his granddaughter was married in 1949.

The Princess Cecilia married Texan Architect Clyde Harris after a whirlwind romance—and that was the last time the crown prince figured prominently in the news—until today.

Except for short local drives in a gray midget Fiat which he drove himself, Wilhelm's only activity was to supervise the construction of a new family tomb at Hechingen. This sepulchre was to replace the traditional family burial place at Potsdam near Berlin—now in Soviet hands.

PAINEVILLE, July 20 — Attorneys for Victor Justinger, convicted torch slayer, have filed a foot-dragging bill of exceptions in Lake County common pleas court in preparation for an appeal to the seventh district court of appeals.

Justinger was sentenced to life imprisonment for the torch slaying of his friend, Tommy Eggleston.

Earl Petterson and Lester Donaldson, Justinger's attorneys, filed the bill of exceptions as part of an appeal from a decision on June 19 by Common Pleas Judge W. S. Slocum overruling a motion for a new trial.

The expedition is ready except for a leader. The party, scheduled to leave tomorrow, had to postpone the trip when the leader, Ornithologist Forrest Buchanan, withdrew because of an illness in his family.

The Ohio Archaeological and Historical Society is sponsoring the trip, to collect specimens of mammals, insects, birds and fish from the Hudson's bay area for its museum in Columbus.

Living Together as Neighbors

"LOVE IS THE FULFILLING OF THE LAW," SAID ST. PAUL.

Scripture—Matthew 25:31-46; Acts 6:1-7; Romans 12:9-21; 13:8-10.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
THERE SURELY never was a more timely subject for a lesson than the above heading. Nations cannot agree, and their spokesmen spend their time in vilifying other nations. It is not unusual for neighbors to disagree so violently that they will not speak to one another.

Husbands and wives, lovers, and children fight. Even churches are rent with disagreements. A great moral awakening is needed for the entire world.

Today's lesson should help each one of us to live that our lives will demonstrate to the world that as Christians, we can live at peace with our neighbors—and by that we do mean only our immediate neighbors, but what Jesus meant by "neighbor" when He told the story of the good Samaritan.

St. Matthew tells of the time when Jesus shall return to judge the earth, and separate the sheep from the goats—the good from the evil. To those on His right, the sheep, He gives His blessing and told them that they—the 12—were so busy teaching, praying and preaching—ministering to the spiritual needs of the people, that they had no time for seeing that secular affairs were administered correctly.

They therefore chose seven men—one of whom was Stephen, soon to be martyred—to take care of the matter. The seven were dedicated for their task with the "laying on of hands," and the affair was settled in the Christian manner.

What are the rules for Christian living? St. Paul gives them to us in easily read form in his letters to the Romans. Let us read them often, meditate upon them, and pause before we act when tensions arise with others, to ask ourselves how we, as Christians, should speak and act.

"Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good."

"Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another." It

MEMORY VERSE

"Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these My brethren, even these least, ye did it unto Me."—Matthew 25:40.

and tells them that when He was hungry they fed Him; when He was thirsty they gave Him to drink; when naked they clothed Him; when ill or in prison they visited Him; when He was a stranger they took Him in.

Surprised they asked Him when they did all those things? and the Lord replied that "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

In a world where there are so many hungry, naked, ill, unjustly imprisoned, destitute—there are limitless opportunities to help. Thank God there are many good people who are opening their hearts and homes and taking other measures to alleviate suffering.

Our newspapers and magazines show pictures of happy looking people—many children among them—who are being brought to our shores to live a new life in a free country where they are safe and will be provided for. Food and clothing are being shipped abroad, but much more needs to be done.

Included in our lesson is an episode of the early Christian church. At that time, there were many Greek Jews in the organization. The needs of all the widows were being taken care of, but the Greeks complained that their widows were not getting their fair share.

The 12 apostles called a meeting of all the church members and always a difficult thing to put others before ourselves. It is comparatively easy to console with people when they are in trouble; but to rejoice with them when they are put ahead of us takes more character—more prayerful wrestling with our envious selves.

"Bless them that persecute you; bless, and curse not. 'Recompense to no man evil for evil. Provide things honest in the sight of all men."

"If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men."

"Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good."

"Owe to no man anything, but to love one another; for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law."

"For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is this saying, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

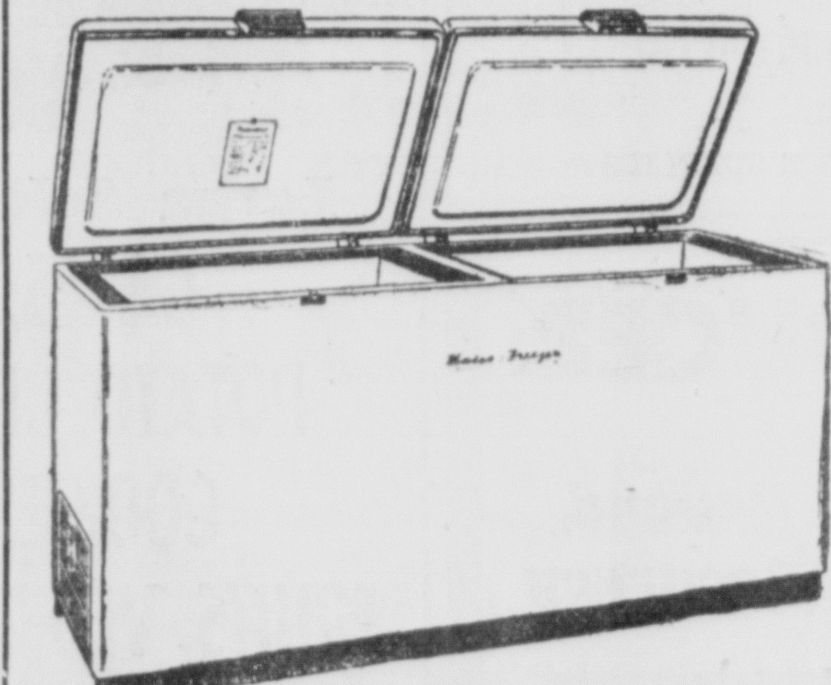

"Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

St. Martin, whose act of charity illustrates our Memory Verse, was a humble disciple of the church, born about 316 A. D. He gave his cloak to a poor man, and that night he had a vision of Jesus, and shortly thereafter was baptized. He rose to be a bishop in the church.

kidnaped when she drove up for gas at a service station. The newlyweds explained that there had been no kidnapping. The couple proceeded to San Diego where they will make their home.

Ex-Crown Prince Dies Quietly In Germany Home

HECHINGEN, July 20 — Ex-Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, whom fate denied the chance to rule Germany, died today of a heart ailment at his home in Hechingen, Wuertemberg.

The 69-year-old son of the late Kaiser Wilhelm had been ill for weeks.

A direct descendant of the famous Hohenzollern family that once ruled much of Europe, Wilhelm's illness had gone virtually unnoticed by the German public.

The man, who would have become Kaiser Wilhelm III had it not been for World War I and the collapse of the monarchy, spent his last years in quiet retirement in Hechingen, at the foot of the fairy tale Castle Burg Hohenzollern — in which his granddaughter was married in 1949.

The Princess Cecilia married Texan Architect Clyde Harris after a whirlwind romance—and that was the last time the crown prince figured prominently in the news—until today.

Except for short local drives in a gray midget Fiat which he drove himself, Wilhelm's only activity was to supervise the construction of a new family tomb at Hechingen. This sepulchre was to replace the traditional family burial place at Potsdam near Berlin—now in Soviet hands.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

FEDERAL TAX LIMITS

In a continuing discussion of the issue, a plurality of editors now favors the American Taxpayers Association's plan for a Constitutional amendment limiting Federal income, inheritance and gift taxes to rates of 25 per cent, except in time of war. A considerable minority argues this would hinder peace-time defense, and would cause higher tax rates on low incomes and increases in other types of Federal taxes. Some editors would assure cuts in Federal non-defense spending by an over-all limit on Federal appropriations. A rather large minority of editors remains undecided as to the wisdom of the tax limit plan.

AUGUSTA Chronicle (Ind.-Dem.):

"The plan to limit the government's power to tax the people has been initiated by the American Taxpayers Association. The proposed law would place a top limit of 25 per cent on the tax rate Congress would be allowed to impose on income, inheritances and gifts. This ceiling rate would not apply... in time of war... Bearing in mind the truth of Chief Justice Marshall's declaration that 'the power to tax is the power to destroy' and taking into consideration the staggering amount of present-day taxation by the Federal government, it would seem that the proposed step is necessary."

MIAMI News (Dem.):

"In these times, men of very moderate means find it necessary to pay income taxes of far more than 25 per cent. Our defense even in time of peace cannot be provided in these times for less... For whatever reason, those behind this drive have taken the stealthy way. They are asking the states, not the Congress, to initiate the measure they propose. That takes 32 states. Some 21 legislatures... have thus far been induced to act... The total movement is an invitation to national bankruptcy and political chaos."

NEW BEDFORD Standard-Times (Ind.):

"The proposal would permit Congress... to void the 25-percent limitation in time of emergency but for periods of no longer than a year... As a defense against Socialistic confiscation of personal income, the limitation appears to be..."

In nearby counties receipts for the week ending July 7, compared with the same week in 1951, were as follows, with 1951 results listed first:

Another $10,000 Given Jap Kids By Yankee GIs

SEOUL, July 20—What would you do with $10,000 in Korea?

To the men of the U. S. 27th Infantry "Wolfhound" Regiment the answer was easy. They sent it to an orphanage in Osaka, Japan, which they adopted in December, 1949.

More than $10,000 was collected last month—the largest donation yet received by the tots. Spurred by inter-battalion competition, the men dug deep into their pockets and came up with this amazing total.

Collected monthly, the money already has paid for a new home, a milk station and an x-ray clinic. Nearing completion are a playground next to the orphanage and a Summer camp on the outskirts of Kobe.

While on leave in Japan, the "Wolfhound" men make it a point to drop in on the Holy Family orphanage where they are sure of a royal welcome from the kids.

The current sum brings to more than $67,000 the total donated by the 27th since the regiment adopted the orphanage.

Flying Farmers Plan For Fair

Preparation for the 1951 Pickaway County Fair was the keynote of discussion during a recent meeting of the Flying Farmers of Muhlenberg 4-H Club in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Caudy.

Next meeting of the group will be held at 7:30 p. m. Aug. 6 in Muhlenberg Township school.

Another $10,000 Given Jap Kids By Yankee GIs

SEOUL, July 20—What would you do with $10,000 in Korea?

To the men of the U. S. 27th Infantry "Wolfhound" Regiment the answer was easy. They sent it to an orphanage in Osaka, Japan, which they adopted in December, 1949.

More than $10,000 was collected last month—the largest donation yet received by the tots. Spurred by inter-battalion competition, the men dug deep into their pockets and came up with this amazing total.

Collected monthly, the money already has paid for a new home, a milk station and an x-ray clinic. Nearing completion are a playground next to the orphanage and a Summer camp on the outskirts of Kobe.

While on leave in Japan, the "Wolfhound" men make it a point to drop in on the Holy Family orphanage where they are sure of a royal welcome from the kids.

The current sum brings to more than $67,000 the total donated by the 27th since the regiment adopted the orphanage.

Preparation for the 1951 Pickaway County Fair was the keynote of discussion during a recent meeting of the Flying Farmers of Muhlenberg 4-H Club in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Caudy.

Dairy books and fair passes were given to every member, and Robert Schwartz, associate county extension agent, discussed the coming fair program.

Next meeting of the group will be held at 7:30 p. m. Aug. 6 in Muhlenberg Township school.

QUIT OVER MacARTHUR

IN THE wake of the Truman-MacArthur controversy there has been an exodus of top brass from the nation's military, and efforts are being made to halt further resignations lest the whole military organization be weakened at a critical time.

To date 20 generals and 21 admirals have resigned this year, the list including many of the most prominent and capable men in both Army and Navy. Many top-ranking Army officers realize they have been stymied for promotion because of their defense of General MacArthur.

In the resignation of Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer the nation has lost the services of one of its most brilliant officers. He defended MacArthur at the congressional hearings. Earlier he had fallen out with General Marshall over the Chinese situation. He was simply tired of petty bickering and resigned.

General Wedemeyer drew most of the plans for the global war against Germany and Japan. He succeeded General Stilwell in China in 1944.

It is reported General Wedemeyer was offered an additional star and a job as deputy chief if he would not defend MacArthur. The list of those who have retired or have put in for retirement is long and imposing, and includes not only those who were close to MacArthur, but others who resent the treatment accorded him by the President.

LATIN AMERICA'S OIL

NOBODY knows how much oil underlies Latin America. Experts believe the amount is vast. There is a "prospective" oil area of 2,500,000 square miles to the south of the U. S.

At the moment 75 percent of it is closed to foreign development, with the nations that possess it inactive for the most part and unwilling or financially incapable of developing it for themselves. Yet the Western Hemisphere needs this oil, and will need it increasingly as the years pass. Two courses have been suggested.

One is, of course, for the United States to make development loans to countries where engineers locate oil in quantity. The other is for private capital, under guaranties by the nations concerned, to develop this resource.

Some Chinese Reds have been under arms for 25 years. When does an agrarian reformer have time to tend his crops?

Behind the clouds is the sun still shining. And during most of July and August it can be expected to shine quite brightly.

These Days

No nation in Asia, in the 19th or 20th century, reached the position of dignity and might equal to Japan prior to 1945. Not as large as the state of California, the Japanese built and held for a short period, from 1895 to 1945, a vast and effectively administered area in Asia from the Kurile Islands into the South Seas and Korea and Manchuria on the mainland of Asia.

From 1853 to 1911, the United States assisted in the building of Japan. It was largely loans from American banks that helped to create and expand Japan's industry. Russian imperialism in Manchuria caused the United States in 1899 to issue the John Hay "open door policy," which strengthened Japan indirectly because it arrested the Russian advance in Manchuria. As a result of Anglo-American support of Japan, in 1902, the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was formulated. This was the first recognition of an East Asian people as an equal by any Western Power. The Anglo-Japanese Alliance was one of the most constructive arrangements in Asiatic affairs and it was a pity that American influences after World War I brought it to an end.

In 1904, Japan went to war with Russia, receiving the moral and financial support of the United States. (At that time, the financial support consisted of loans from private banks.) Japan won that war by the Treaty of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Theodore Roosevelt, who was then President, taking the position that a strong Japan was essential to the peace of East Asia. For that peace was even then imperilled by the aggressive imperialism of Russia and the weakness and disorganization of China. Theodore Roosevelt, who was influenced in his thinking by John Hay, Henry Cabot Lodge, and Elihu Root, moved soundly in Asiatic affairs.

About 1911, an agitation developed against the Japanese in California, led by the McClatchys of the Sacramento "Bee." This had to do with the ownership of land in California and produced a race-prejudice which affected not only Japanese, but all the peoples of Eastern Asia, Chinese, Filipinos, Hindus, etc. Its counterpart in Asia was a violent and growing anti-Americanism.

For this is an axiom in human history: race prejudice begets race prejudice. No people will voluntarily admit inferiority, because of blood and color, to any other people. Much of the antagonism which the United States is now encountering in Asia has its origin in the anti-Oriental agitation and legislation by Congress and by the legislatures of several Western states 40 years and more ago.

So during the 1920's and 1930's, the relations between Japan and the United States deteriorated. On September 18, 1931, Japan invaded and eventually conquered Manchuria and the Lower Yangtze Valley of China. This is the effectual beginning of World War I, for it guaranteed that eventually the United States would make military efforts to rescue China. Chiang Kai-shek, however, had to wait a decade before the United States came in.

About one week before that war was over, and after the Japanese had tried to find a way to peace, Soviet Russia entered that war and, by the terms of the Yalta Agreement, received as compensation all

Treatment of Bone Infection

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

UNTIL the discovery of the antibiotic drugs, osteomyelitis, or infection of the bone, was among the most stubborn of human disorders. All cases required surgery and, even then, there was a long period of sickness and disability. In recent years, the antibiotics have changed this picture for the vast majority of such sufferers, though in certain instances these drugs were not effective.

For these cases there is now a new treatment which combines the use of penicillin with absolute rest for the affected part and its treatment by refrigeration to hasten healing.

Packing With Ice

Packing the infected bone with ice has a number of beneficial effects. Fever is reduced, the growth of bacteria slowed down and the action of the penicillin encouraged.

The part of the bone with the infection is covered with a moist towel on which one or two ice-bags are placed. It has been found that the toes and fingers can tolerate a temperature of 57° F., the calf and arms from 36° to 38° F., and the thigh, 32° F. The ice is removed for an hour once or twice a day to observe the circulation and the extent of the infection.

Extremity At Rest
Penicillin, 400,000 units twice daily, is given into a muscle, together with the ice therapy, for from five to twenty days. The extremity involved is raised and kept immovable by splints during the time the infection is active. In those cases requiring operation, the ice is used for about five days after operation.

This form of treatment has proved very effective in some cases of osteomyelitis which did not respond to penicillin alone.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. C.: For two weeks, I have had excessive urination. Could you tell me what might cause this?

Answer: This condition may be due to various causes, such as diabetes, bladder or kidney infection, or a pituitary gland disturbance.

An examination by the physician is needed to determine the exact cause.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kaesong isn't quite finished as my barber and I take off for our vacation, but we expect that by the time we get back Congress will have the bill to reconstruct North and South Korea, indemnify the Communies for their trouble and so on.

But thank goodness our relations with Russia are coming along nicely. . . Congress has sent them a resolution proclaiming our friendship for the Russian people, they have put out a magazine proclaiming their friendship for us.

Naturally the state department denounced their magazine as "more propaganda efforts to lull free nations to sleep."

All that's missing now is Pravda's reaction to the congressional message. . . that will be "more propaganda efforts by the capitalists to lull the true democracies to sleep."

With so many people being lulled to sleep it's amazing that

A cryptic letter commanding him to report to attorney Owen Bradley, brings Tonto Riley, wanderer, riding into the town of Avriilo, N. M. Everyone apparently had been awaiting Tonto's arrival including the beautiful hostess at the Golden Saloon who whispers to him that he'd better get out of town. Strangely stirred by this lovely lady-like young woman, Tonto learns that her name is Ruby Sevier. But urgency of the business in hand, sends him on his way to lawyer Bradley's office. From Bradley, Tonto learns that he (Tonto) is to inherit the vast Slash S ranch, providing he can track down and bring to justice the murderer of his late owner, reckless young Rick Staples.

CHAPTER FIVE
Tonto could understand Al Hibbs' thought for his safety now, but the girl's warning still puzzled him. It had implications that he didn't like. In some way, unknown as yet to Tonto, she was connected with the Golden, and Bart Overby gambled there.

"Who's Ruby Sevier?" he said abruptly.
"Ruby? Why, she—works at the Golden," Bradley said. He impatiently shuffled the papers. "If you accept this bequest and agree to its terms, sign this paper and I will file it with the probate documents at the county seat."

Tonto accepted the paper and read it swiftly. It was no more than a formal acceptance of the terms of the will.
"It's only fair to warn you that no one knows how Bart Overby will take this. He's unpredictable. I think he could be dangerous. You stand between him and the Slash S and he may do something about it. You should know that."

Tonto held out his hand for the pen. Bradley dipped it in the inkwell and relinquished it. Tonto bent down and placed his signature on the paper. He straightened and Bradley turned the paper, glanced at the signature and then held out his hand.

"You're the manager of the Slash S, Tonto. With luck, in two years you'll be full owner."

Tonto slowly descended the stairs. Rancher! he said the word mentally, savoring the feel of it, trying to apply it to Tonto Riley, erstwhile chuckle rider. He tried to visualize the giant Slash S and couldn't quite achieve it. For an ecstatic moment his mind built a picture of the future. Tonto Riley wealthy and established, a power in Avriilo. But he couldn't fully build up that concept, either. It was something he would have to grow into and earn, something he had two years to complete and make true.

He thought of Grant, unknown to him except as a half-forgotten

Georgia Sothorn

NEW YORK—It was mildly astonishing the other afternoon to hear over a neighboring New Jersey radio station an advertisement for a Union City, N. J., burlesque house. It was difficult to believe that the FCC, which puts its feet down on liquor commercials over the wireless, would permit the grind-and-bump art to be plugged on the air, but it evidently was so.

Once over my surprise I began to meditate on the absence of the burleycue halls from these parts. It has been if I remember rightly 14 years since Mayor LaGuardia, taking time off from his dramatic readings of the funnies over the radio, blew himself into a storm of sound and fury and shut down every burlesque house in town. That was 1937—the year, if I recall correctly, that burlesque in New Jersey came to be a large lure for pleasure-bound New Yorkers, of an evening.

Now, technically, we have no burleycue in the big town. Oh, there still are strip-teasers practicing their dark and peculiar profession along 52nd street and in the Village, and out at Coney Island there are a half-dozen sidestreets tent shows where the barkers promise the gawkers that the luscious little redhead will do the dance of the three gardenias without the three gardenias—but burlesque, as such, is missing. Mike Todd tried to resurrect it with a horrible spectacle called Peep Show last season, but he was offering a 35-cent show for a $7 top.

The radio plug for the Jersey burlesque house made me stop and think of exactly what it was we were missing here in Manhattan. You know—all in all, it isn't much.

WHEN I WAS GOING THROUGH A PRECOCIOUS PERIOD, I used to think that burlesque was, in its way, an art. I howled when LaGuardia shut it down here. It had a long and reasonably honorable reputation in show business, and like all the other pseudo-afficionados,

I used to point out that lots of big show people—Phil Silvers, Bert Lahr, Willie Howard, etc.—came from burlesque. I never stopped to consider that they got out of it as soon as they could.

This is what we looked back on so fondly: you paid a buck or so for admission and you walked into an old theater that was crawling with vermin and just waiting for the arsonist's fine Italian hand. The seats creaked and the clientele was, to be kind, raffish.

A salesman went up the aisles with boxes of candy and ice cream and chocolate bars which he assured everyone contained lovely pictures. When the show began, it stuck to a rigid formula. First a stripper would come out and take off her clothes while a tenor sang A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody (I remember seeing Robert Alda fill that role) and then a comic skit would be held.

The comic skits were what I personally remembered so fondly—and yet in retrospect, they were pretty miserable little things. They were rough, bawdy and ready and, at least in the last few years of burlesque's life here in New York, they were single-entendre.

The only ones I can say that honestly made me laugh, inside as well as out, were the ones that Silvers used to do. He was an up-and-coming young comedian at the time and apparently he couldn't go through the shop-worn, aged skits with a straight face.

"Now," he would say, in an aside to the audience, "I'm supposed to drink this whiskey and get drunk. Isn't this silly? Oh, well, I'll string along with a gag"—and he would drink the whiskey and string along with the gag.

ACTUALLY, THE LEVEL OF HUMOR was low and childish. As for the strippers—some of them were interesting to behold and one or two were handsome, in a blank way.

I remember that Margie Hart was a white-skinned redhead whose rock formations were engrossing, and Georgia Sothorn was a brassy-blond type who had her admirers. But they always were somewhat removed from women as a man thought of them seriously.

It would seem pretty difficult to fall deeply in love with a girl who took her clothes off in front of a thousand men, the way, say, a stage door John fell in love with Marilyn Miller.

I guess the best thing about burlesque in New York was the chorus line. I don't know where they dug up those tired blondes who jiggled aimlessly across the stage and sang in their flatted-flute voices, but they were really wonderful.

Some of them would just stand around stripped to the waist, like Grecian statues—while they chewed gum. Musical comedies have tried to satirize them for years now, but they rarely come close. The burlesque chorines were from another world.

As for the rest of it—maybe I'm prudish in my old age, but I'd just as soon they kept it dead and buried.

QUIT OVER MacARTHUR

IN THE wake of the Truman-MacArthur controversy there has been an exodus of top brass from the nation's military, and efforts are being made to halt further resignations lest the whole military organization be weakened at a critical time.

To date 20 generals and 21 admirals have resigned this year, the list including many of the most prominent and capable men in both Army and Navy. Many top-ranking Army officers realize they have been stymied for promotion because of their defense of General MacArthur.

In the resignation of Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer the nation has lost the services of one of its most brilliant officers. He defended MacArthur at the congressional hearings. Earlier he had fallen out with General Marshall over the Chinese situation. He was simply tired of petty bickering and resigned.

General Wedemeyer drew most of the plans for the global war against Germany and Japan. He succeeded General Stilwell in China in 1944.

It is reported General Wedemeyer was offered an additional star and a job as deputy chief if he would not defend MacArthur. The list of those who have retired or have put in for retirement is long and imposing, and includes not only those who were close to MacArthur, but others who resent the treatment accorded him by the President.

LATIN AMERICA'S OIL

NOBODY knows how much oil underlies Latin America. Experts believe the amount is vast. There is a "prospective" oil area of 2,500,000 square miles to the south of the U. S.

At the moment 75 percent of it is closed to foreign development, with the nations that possess it inactive for the most part and unwilling or financially incapable of developing it for themselves. Yet the Western Hemisphere needs this oil, and will need it increasingly as the years pass. Two courses have been suggested.

One is, of course, for the United States to make development loans to countries where engineers locate oil in quantity. The other is for private capital, under guarantees by the nations concerned, to develop this resource.

Some Chinese Reds have been under arms for 25 years. When does an agrarian reformer have time to tend his crops?

Behind the clouds is the sun still shining. And during most of July and August it can be expected to shine quite brightly.

These Days

No nation in Asia, in the 19th or 20th century, reached the position of dignity and might equal to Japan prior to 1945. Not as large as the state of California, the Japanese built and held for a short period, from 1895 to 1945, a vast and effectively administered area in Asia from the Kurile Islands into the South Seas and Korea and Manchuria on the mainland of Asia.

From 1853 to 1911, the United States assisted in the building of Japan. It was largely loans from American banks that helped to create and expand Japan's industry. Russian imperialism in Manchuria caused the United States in 1899 to issue the John Hay "open door policy," which strengthened Japan indirectly because it arrested the Russian advance in Manchuria. As a result of Anglo-American support of Japan, in 1902, the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was formulated. This was the first recognition of an East Asian people as an equal by any Western Power. The Anglo-Japanese Alliance was one of the most constructive arrangements in Asiatic affairs and it was a pity that American influences after World War I brought it to an end.

In 1904, Japan went to war with Russia, receiving the moral and financial support of the United States. (At that time, the financial support consisted of loans from private banks.) Japan won that war by the Treaty of Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Theodore Roosevelt, who was then President, taking the position that a strong Japan was essential to the peace of East Asia. For that peace was even then imperiled by the aggressive imperialism of Russia and the weakness and disorganization of China. Theodore Roosevelt, who was influenced in his thinking by John Hay, Henry Cabot Lodge, and Elihu Root, moved soundly in Asiatic affairs.

About 1911, an agitation developed against the Japanese in California, led by the McClatchys of the Sacramento "Bee." This had to do with the ownership of land in California and produced a race-prejudice which affected not only Japanese, but all the peoples of Eastern Asia, Chinese, Filipinos, Hindus, etc. Its counterpart in Asia was a violent and growing anti-Americanism.

For this is an axiom in human history: race prejudice begets race prejudice. No people will voluntarily admit inferiority, because of blood and color, to any other people. Much of the antagonism which the United States is now encountering in Asia has its origin in the anti-Oriental agitation and legislation by Congress and by the legislatures of several Western states 40 years and more ago.

So during the 1920's and 1930's, the relations between Japan and the United States deteriorated. On September 18, 1931, Japan invaded and eventually conquered Manchuria and the Lower Yangtze Valley of China. This is the effectual beginning of World War I, for it guaranteed that eventually the United States would make military efforts to rescue China. Chiang Kai-shek, however, had to wait a decade before the United States came in.

About one week before that war was over, and after the Japanese had tried to find a way to peace, Soviet Russia entered that war and, by the terms of the Yalta Agreement, received as compensation all

Treatment of Bone Infection

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

UNTIL the discovery of the antibiotic drugs, osteomyelitis, or infection of the bone, was among the most stubborn of human disorders. All cases required surgery and, even then, there was a long period of sickness and disability. In recent years, the antibiotics have changed this picture for the vast majority of such sufferers, though in certain instances these drugs were not effective.

For these cases there is now a new treatment which combines the use of penicillin with absolute rest for the affected part and its treatment by refrigeration to hasten healing.

Packing With Ice

Packing the infected bone with ice has a number of beneficial effects. Fever is reduced, the growth of bacteria slowed down and the action of the penicillin encouraged.

The part of the bone with the infection is covered with a moist towel on which one or two icebags are placed. It has been found that the toes and fingers can tolerate a temperature of 57° F., the calf and arms from 36° to 38° F., and the thigh, 32° F. The ice is removed for an hour once or twice a day to observe the circulation and the extent of the infection.

If the skin over the affected area does not become warmer than that of the opposite healthy part after the ice has been removed for an hour, the refrigeration is stopped. This ice therapy is used for from five to fourteen days or until the infection subsides.

Extremity At Rest

Penicillin, 400,000 units twice daily, is given into a muscle, together with the ice therapy, for from five to twenty days. The extremity involved is raised and kept immobile by splints during the time the infection is active. In those cases requiring operation, the ice is used for about five days after operation.

This form of treatment has proved very effective in some cases of osteomyelitis which did not respond to penicillin alone.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. C.: For two weeks, I have had excessive urination. Could you tell me what might cause this?

Answer: This condition may be due to various causes, such as diabetes, bladder or kidney infection, or a pituitary gland disturbance.

An examination by the physician is needed to determine the exact cause.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kaesong isn't quite finished as my barber and I take off for our vacation, but we expect that by the time we get back Congress will have the bill to reconstruct North and South Korea, indemnify the Communies for their trouble and so on.

But thank goodness our relations with Russia are coming along nicely. . . Congress has sent them a resolution proclaiming our friendship for the Russian people, they have put out a magazine proclaiming their friendship for us.

Naturally the state department denounced their magazine as "more propaganda efforts to lull free nations to sleep."

All that's missing now is Pravda's reaction to the congressional message. . . that will be "more propaganda efforts by the capitalists to lull the true democracies to sleep."

With so many people being lulled to sleep it's amazing that

SYNOPSIS
A cryptic letter commanding him to report to attorney Owen Bradley, brings Tonta Riley, wanderer, riding into the town of Avriilo, N. M. Everyone apparently had been awaiting Tonta's arrival including the beautiful hostess at the Golden Saloon who whispers to him that he'd better get out of town. Strangely stirred by this lovely lady-like young woman, Tonta learns that her name is Ruby Sevier. But urgency of the business in hand, sends him on his way to lawyer Bradley's office. From Bradley, Tonta learns that he (Tonta) is to inherit the vast Slash S. Ranch, providing he can track down and bring to justice the murderer of his late owner, reckless young Rick Staples.

CHAPTER FIVE
TONTA could understand Al Hibbes' thought for his safety now, but the girl's warning still puzzled him. It had implications that he didn't like. In some way, unknown as yet to Tonta, she was connected with the Golden, and Bart Overby gambled there.

"Who's Ruby Sevier?" he said abruptly.
"Ruby? Why, she—works at the Golden," Bradley said. He impatiently shuffled the papers. "If you accept this bequest and agree to its terms, sign this paper and I will file it with the probate documents at the county seat."

Tonta accepted the paper and read it swiftly. It was no more than a formal acceptance of the terms of the will.

"It's only fair to warn you that no one knows how Bart Overby will take this. He's unpredictable. I think he could be dangerous. You stand between him and the Slash S and he may do something about it. You should know that."

Tonta held out his hand for the pen. Bradley dipped it in the inkwell and relinquished it. Tonta bent down and placed his signature on the paper. He straightened and Bradley turned the paper, glanced at the signature and then held out his hand.

"You're the manager of the Slash S, Tonta. With luck, in two years you'll be full owner."

Tonta slowly descended the stairs. Rancher he said the word mentally, savoring the feel of it. Trying to apply it to Tonta Riley, erstwhile chuckle-ride. He tried to visualize the giant Slash S and couldn't quite achieve it. For an ecstatic moment his mind built a picture of the future. Tonta Riley wealthy and established, a power in Avriilo. But he couldn't fully build up that concept, either. It was something he would have to grow into and earn, something he had two years to complete and make true.

He thought of Grant, unknown to him except as a half-forgotten story his father had told, dead now. There was Rick, the son, also little more than a name to Tonta, a man who had been shot down at short range upon a road north of Avriilo.

Tonta paused at the foot of the stairs. At this moment he started on the trail of a murderer who had successfully remained hidden from the law for two long years.

It was a job, and no denying it. The sun was bright and there was already the promise that the day would be hot. There was hardly enough breeze to stir the ankle-deep dust in the rutted street. Tonta pulled his hat brim lower over his eyes, looked toward the Golden, not far away on his side of the street. A woman approached him along the walk beyond the saloon and Tonta instantly recognized her.

He stepped back against the wall, waiting for her to come up. He thought surely that she must see him. Her pace was unhurried and once more Tonta admired her supple grace. His eyes lingered for a moment upon her figure, dropped, and he fumbled for tobacco and paper.

He looked up again and she had disappeared. Tonta was startled until he realized that she had turned in alongside the saloon building. His eyes narrowed. There were things about Ruby Sevier that needed explaining. She worked at the Golden and so did Bart Overby.

Tonta's eyes swept over the unrevealing front of the Golden. He was one who believed in the virtue of quick decision and action thereon. The Golden was a case in point. He lit his cigaret and pushed away from the wall.

He heard a step beside him and his head swiveled around. A stoop-shouldered old man with a dirty white beard grinned up at him with loose, moist lips. His nose was bulbous and cross-hatched with small blue and red veins. The blue eyes were watery and uncertain, lying deep under shaggy white brows as dirty as the beard.

His black hat had a huge, jagged rent in the crown and had been pulled down so far that it rested on the tips of the hairy ears.

"You know Old Baldy," the man said in a whining voice. He passed the back of his hand across his mouth and grinned widely. He was nearly toothless.

"Never heard of him," Tonta shook his head.

The old man exploded. He thumped his scrawny chest. His voice slid from high anger to a whining singsong. "You know Old Baldy. He's been your friend. Ain't you going to get a drink for a poor old man?"

Every town had its worthless citizens, Tonta knew, and this man must be Avriilo's. With the easy, unthinking generosity of the cowboy, Tonta grinned.

"Sure, Old Timer. I was just fixing to go to the Golden. I reckon you're good for one drink, anyhow."

"One drink," Baldy repeated and bobbed his head. "Good! One drink. Old Baldy's everyone's friend. He knows about everybody, I reckon."

Tonta moved lazily up the walk, Baldy shambling beside him.

"Ever heard of Rick Staples?" Tonta asked.

Baldy blinked rapidly, sniffled and lifted his hat.

"Sure, Rick! Where's he been? He said he'd get me a drink but I ain't seen him since yesterday. Nice feller, Rick. Always did good to Old Baldy, you bet. You want to see him?"

"No," Tonta said gently. "No, Rick won't be around for a time."

"Rick'll be around," Baldy said with senile certainty.

Tonta said nothing. The old man might know much about Avriilo, but it would do Tonta no good. He would never be able to distinguish between truth, facts, and the dreamlike ramblings of the old man's fogged brain. They turned into the Golden, Tonta mounting with a heavy tread while Baldy sidled up the steps.

Tonta pushed open the batwings and Baldy scampered around him, a beatific expression on his wrinkled face. He reached the bar and turned expectantly, fingers fumbling nervously at the mahogany rail. Tonta placed his booted foot on the brass rod, jerked his thumb toward the old man as the florid barkeeper came up.

"Me'n my pard will take one each."

"He ain't worth it, stranger," the barkeep said, ham-like flaps on the bar. Tonta lifted his hat brim with the tip of his thumb.

"That's my bad luck, seeing's I promised."

The barkeep poured the whiskey into squat glasses. Instantly Baldy's grimy hand darted out like a snake.

"Mighty good to Old Baldy. Mighty good." His voice lifted into a singsong whine.

NEW YORK—It was mildly astonishing the other afternoon to hear over a neighboring New Jersey radio station an advertisement for a Union City, N. J., burlesque house. It was difficult to believe that the FCC, which puts its feet down on liquor commercials over the wireless, would permit the grind-and-bump art to be plugged on the air, but it evidently was so.

Once over my surprise I began to meditate on the absence of the burleycue halls from these parts. It has been if I remember rightly 14 years since Mayor LaGuardia, taking time off from his dramatic readings of the funnies over the radio, blew himself into a storm of sound and fury and shut down every burlesque house in town. That was 1937—the year, if I recall correctly, that burlesque in New Jersey came to be a large lure for pleasure-bound New Yorkers, of an evening.

Now, technically, we have no burleycue in the big town. Oh, there still are strip-teasers practicing their dark and peculiar profession along 52nd street and in the Village, and out at Coney Island there are a half-dozen sidestreet tent shows where the barkers promise the gawkers that the luscious little redhead will do the dance of the three gardenias without the three gardenias—but burlesque, as such, is missing. Mike Todd tried to resurrect it with a horrible spectacle called Peep Show last season, but he was offering a 35-cent show for a $7 top.

The radio plug for the Jersey burlesque house made me stop and think of exactly what it was we were missing here in Manhattan. You know—all in all, it isn't much.

WHEN I WAS GOING THROUGH A PRECOCIOUS PERIOD, I used to think that burlesque was, in its way, an art. I howled when LaGuardia shut it down here. It had a long and reasonably honorable reputation in show business, and like all the other pseudo-afficionados,

I used to point out that lots of big show people—Phil Silvers, Bert Lahr, Willie Howard, etc.—came from burlesque. I never stopped to consider that they got out of it as soon as they could.

This is what we looked back on so fondly: you paid a buck or so for admission and you walked into an old theater that was crawling with vermin and just waiting for the arsonist's fine Italian hand. The seats creaked and the clientele was, to be kind, raffish.

A salesman went up the aisles with boxes of candy and ice cream and chocolate bars which he assured everyone contained lovely pictures. When the show began, it stuck to a rigid formula. First a stripper would come out and take off her clothes while a tenor sang A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody (I remember seeing Robert Alda fill that role) and then a comic skit would be held.

The comic skits were what I personally remembered so fondly—and yet in retrospect, they were pretty miserable little things. They were rough, bawdy and ready and, at least in the last few years of burlesque's life here in New York, they were single-entendre.

The only ones I can say that honestly made me laugh, inside as well as out, were the ones that Silvers used to do. He was an up-and-coming young comedian at the time and apparently he couldn't go through the show-worn, aged skits with a straight face.

"Now," he would say, in an aside to the audience, "I'm supposed to drink this whiskey and get drunk. Isn't this silly? Oh, well, I'll string along with a gag"—and he would drink the whiskey and string along with the gag.

ACTUALLY, THE LEVEL OF HUMOR was low and childish. As for the strippers—some of them were interesting to behold and one or two were handsome, in a blank way.

I remember that Margie Hart was a white-skinned redhead whose rock formations were engrossing, and Georgia Sothorn was a brassy-blond type who had her admirers. But they always were somewhat removed from women as a man thought of them seriously.

It would seem pretty difficult to fall deeply in love with a girl who took her clothes off in front of a thousand men, the way, say, a stage door John fell in love with Marilyn Miller.

I guess the best thing about burlesque in New York was the chorus line. I don't know where they dug up those tired blondes who jiggled amiably across the stage and sang in their flatted-flute voices, but they were really wonderful.

Some of them would just stand around stripped to the waist, like Grecian statues—while they chewed gum. Musical comedies have tried to satirize them for years now, but they rarely come close. The burlesque chorines were from another world.

As for the rest of it—maybe I

Society For Crippled Children, Nurse's Group Plan Community Service

Both Groups Elect Officers

Two new county organizations held meetings Tuesday evening, elected officers and set up plans for a program of community aid.

The Pickaway County Society for Crippled Children, now directed by Business and Professional Woman's Club, took steps toward being an independent group when it met in the business place of the newly-elected president, Charles Richards.

Other officers named were Mrs. Irma Stevenson, vice-president; Miss Lorraine Stambaugh, secretary and Miss Mary K. Kennedy, treasurer.

A nominating committee with members, Mrs. Anna Chandler, Miss Clara Southward and Miss Clarissa Talbut, had been previously appointed to present a slate of officers to the organization.

Committees named to carry on the work of the society were: Program, Mrs. Mae Groome and Mrs. Helen Pickens; membership chairman, E. C. Hill of Williamsport; publicity, Eugene Wilson of Ashville; and seal sale chairman, Mrs. Clifford Beaver.

Members agreed to sponsor a display at Pickaway County Fair which will explain the aims of the organization and also give information to those needing the aid of the society.

A case that had been referred to the organization through the county health department was approved for treatment.

According to a spokesman for the group, "We have had very few requests for aid, and we don't have much money, but we are asking that parents who desire help for their crippled children, at least give us a chance to investigate the case. We will do all we can within our limited means."

The second group held its organizational meeting and Miss Margaret Good was selected to head the Pickaway County Nurses Association.

Other officers selected were Mrs. Ralph Stevenson Jr., vice-president; recording secretary, Mrs. Ray Carroll; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Pickens and treasurer, Mrs. Phil E. Smith.

Members agreed to meet the third Tuesday in each month, a regular meeting place to be determined. Mrs. Al Thomas of West Franklin street invited the women to hold their next meeting at the Guest House.

While the primary aim of the group is Civilian Defense, future plans call for establishing further aims and setting up a constitution to govern the organization.

A spokesman for the new body declared that: "The organization is open to all registered nurses in the county, and at present we do not anticipate affiliation with a district or national organization."

4-H Club Groups Plan County Fair Activities

Bloomfield Busybodies 4-H Club held a grading session recently at the home of Nancy Cromley. Projects were graded by Miss Genevieve Alley. Refreshments were served by Fern Dennis and Miss Cromley.

The club adviser, Mrs. H. M. Middle, was hostess to members of Darby Cookerettes 4-H Club Monday. The group held a discussion on decorating their County Fair booth.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Project books were completed when Deercreek 4-H Club met last Friday in the home of John, Dick and Virginia Wardell. Plans were discussed for "Youth Night" at the County Fair.

Jim Mowery, David and Paul Drummond will help serve refreshments when the club meets, July 27, in the home of Louise Clark.

Saltcreek Stir and Chatter 4-H Club held its meeting in the Deffenbaugh home recently, followed by work on plans for the club's county fair booth.

Refreshments were served by Helen Consolevor.

Tax Returns For Domestic Must Be Filed

"Housewives must file Social Security tax returns for their domestic workers for the second quarter of 1951 by July 31 at the latest," according to Leonard Garrard, representative of the Social Security field office in Columbus, who calls in Pickaway County.

Garrard advised employers of domestics, who have not already done so, to immediately get in touch with the collector of internal revenue. "It is necessary to do this only once," he said, "thereafter the collector's office will mail your tax blanks to you each quarter."

The local office has received many calls from housewives asking how their employees can obtain Social Security numbers.

"An employee who has never had a number before," Garrard explained, "can get one at any Social Security field office. If an employee already has a number, no matter how long ago she got that number, it is still good. An individual gets one number, and one number only, during a lifetime. If she has lost her Social Security card, she can get a duplicate card bearing the same number at the nearest Social Security office."

Garrard added that all tax returns must include the employee's Social Security number, otherwise the employee cannot get credit for the wages being reported. Household employers themselves do not require numbers.

"The new law," Garrard stated, "covers domestics on a compulsory basis and for the first time gives workers regularly employed in a private household the same retirement and survivorship protection that other workers have enjoyed under the Social Security program." He added:

"To be regularly employed, a domestic must work for one employer for 24 or more days in a calendar quarter, either part-time or fulltime, and be paid $50 or more in cash wages. A calendar quarter is a three-month period beginning with Jan. 1, April 1, July 1 or Oct. 1."

Church Delegates Attend Wooster Conference

At a service held Sunday evening in the yard of Circleville Presbyterian manse, eight young people were commissioned as delegates from the local Westminster Fellowship to Westminster Fellowship conference being held this week on the Wooster college campus. The group left Circleville last Monday.

While there they are taking course in "Missions", "Great Christian Beliefs" and courses in Bible study.

The members are living in the college dormitories and having their meals in the dining hall. Their daily program includes morning watch, classes, recreation, and vesper services each evening with a special speaker.

The delegates are Margery Ann Davis, Eugene Dowler, Larry Thornton, Anne Downing, Jo Ann Brink, Barbara Schumm, Lissa Given and Linda Given.

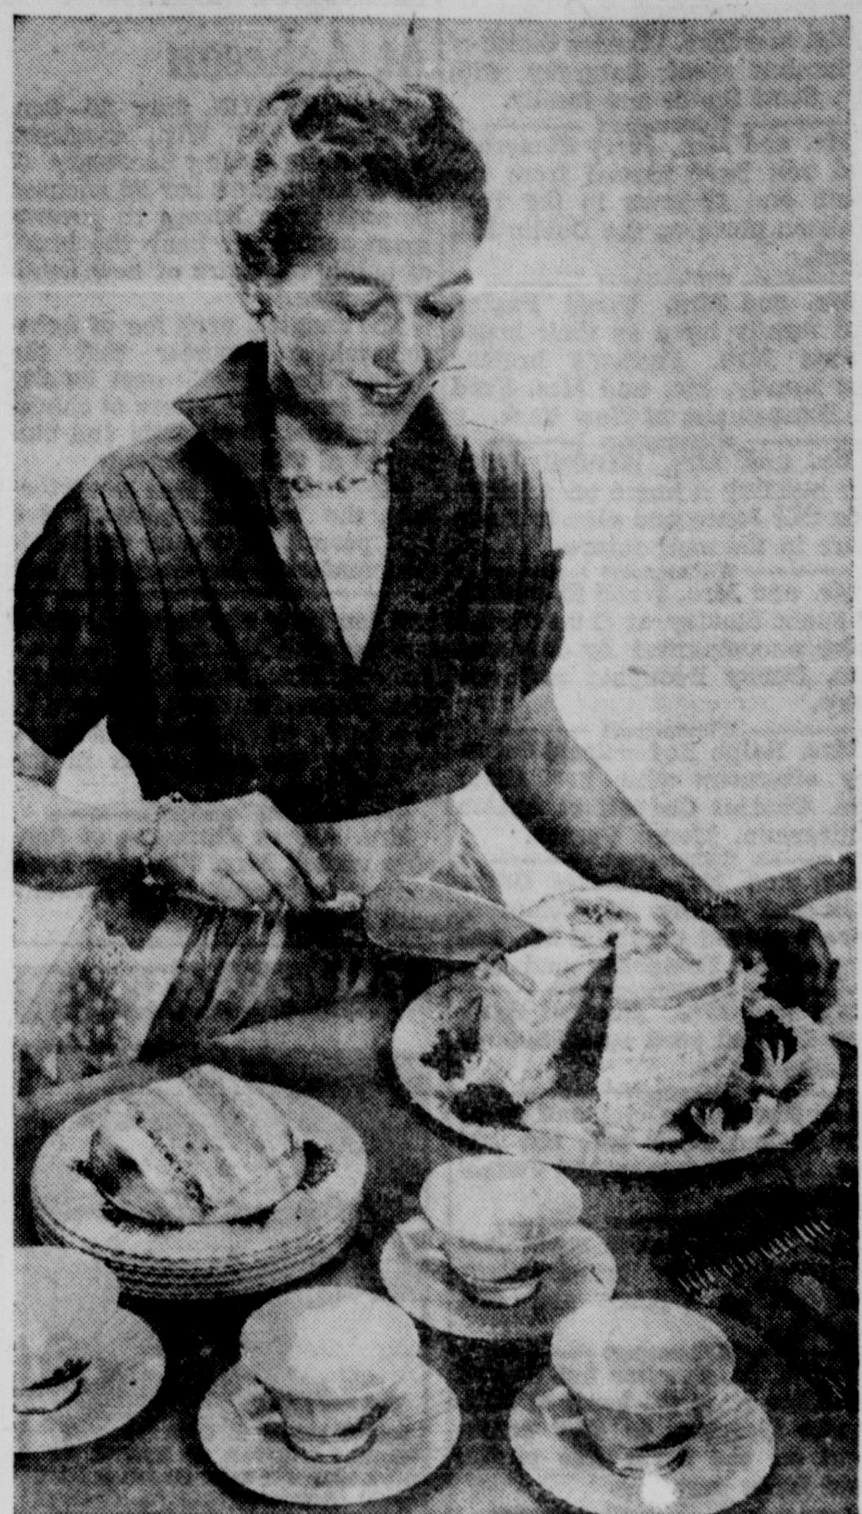

Dress Contest Held By Grange

A program with a safety theme was presented by Mrs. Robert DeLong when Saltcreek Valley Grange met Tuesday evening.

Readings were given by Mrs. DeLong, Robert DeLong, and Mrs. Gordon Thompson. Other features of the program were piano solos by Wanda Maxson and Billy Rihl; piano duet by Joan Judy and Donna Ralston and a drum solo by Raymond Maxson with Billy Rihl at the piano.

A dress contest was held with the following winners: Mrs. Clarence Maxson, first; Mrs. W. E. Luckhart, second; and Mrs. Orley Judy, third.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Luckhart, David and Max Luckhart, O. S. Mowery, Gail Heffner and Mrs. Guy Heffner were named as members of the August lunch committee.

ALL SET FOR TEA—Round Party Sandwich Loaf with its four tasty fillings, prettily "iced" with cream cheese tinted to suit your fancy.

In one collection of quotations, proverbs, maxims and such, there are over 50 allusions to bread: plain bread, dry bread, bread with and without butter or cheese. But we're sure the poets, wits and sages of old would have waxed even more lyrical if they could have sampled any one of today's offerings!

The Round Party Sandwich Loaf is just the thing for that afternoon tea you must give. It's more substantial than those usual little sandwiches, easier to keep fresh until serving time, and has a very festive look, too.

For a budget lunch that's a little different, try the baskets filled with creamed luncheon meat. With a crisp salad of lettuce, tomatoes and carrot curls, and a simple dessert, your family or guests will be well satisfied, without being stuffed!

If we have to have a favorite, though, we'll pick the Savory Cheese Loaf. It's easy as can be to make, and delicious!

For the round party sandwich loaf: Make or buy a large round loaf of bread (about 2 pounds). Remove bottom crust. Cut bread crosswise into 6 round slices about 1-4 inch thick. Cut off crusty edges from each slice with scissors.

Combine 2 small cans grated tuna fish with 1-4 c. minced onion and 1-2 c. mayonnaise. Spread half this mixture on bottom slice. Top with second slice. Spread with 3-4 c. drained pickle relish mixed with 1-3 c. softened butter.

Put on third slice, and cover with two jars of pimiento cheese spread. Put on the fourth bread slice. Combine 4 hard cooked eggs, chopped with 1-2 c. mayonnaise. Spread on bread, add fifth slice and spread with remainder of tuna mixture. Put on last slice.

Soften 1 pound cream cheese, mix with 1-4 c. milk and tint with food coloring. Spread outside of cake. Garnish as desired. Chill in the refrigerator three hours or overnight. Makes about 14 servings.

For lunch baskets: Slice across 1 whole loaf enriched bread to form 4 equal parts. Remove crusts from each part. Cut out center of each with scissors, leaving a rim and bottom of about 3-4".

Brush each basket inside and out with lemon butter, made by melting 1-4 c. butter or margarine and adding 2 tbsp. lemon juice. Place baskets on cookie sheet and bake at 350F. (moderate oven) until baskets are brown and crisp, turning frequently.

Meanwhile, prepare Creamed Luncheon Meat: Melt 2 tbsp. butter or margarine. Add 1 can luncheon meat cut into bite-size cubes, 1-2 c. minced onion, 1-4 c. chopped green pepper. Cook until onion is clear. Sprinkle in 2 tbsp. flour and gradually stir in 1 c. milk.

Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thick. Fill toast baskets with this mixture and serve at once.

To make savory cheese loaf: Trim all crusts from 1 loaf unsliced enriched bread. Make a series of diagonal cuts about every 1 1-2", cutting almost through loaf. Mix 1-4 c. butter or margarine with 4 medium scalloons, chopped, 2 tsp. poppy seeds and 3 tbsp. prepared mustard.

Spread all but 2 tbsp. mixture between cuts. Slice 1-2 lb. Swiss processed cheese. Fill cuts in bread with cheese. Spread outside of loaf with remaining butter mixture. Press loaf together.

Cut in half 4 slices bacon; arrange on top of loaf. Place in greased shallow baking dish. Bake at 350 F. (moderate oven) 15 minutes or until cheese is melted and loaf is browned. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Society For Crippled Children, Nurse's Group Plan Community Service

Both Groups Elect Officers

Two new county organizations held meetings Tuesday evening, elected officers and set up plans for a program of community aid.

The Pickaway County Society for Crippled Children, now directed by Business and Professional Woman's Club, took steps toward being an independent group when it met in the business place of the newly-elected president, Charles Richards.

Other officers named were Mrs. Irma Stevenson, vice-president; Miss Lorraine Stambaugh, secretary and Miss Mary K. Kennedy, treasurer.

A nominating committee with members, Mrs. Anna Chandler, Miss Clara Southward and Miss Clarissa Talbut, had been previously appointed to present a slate of officers to the organization.

Committees named to carry on the work of the society were: Program, Mrs. Mae Groome and Mrs. Helen Pickens; membership chairman, E. C. Hill of Williamsport; publicity, Eugene Wilson of Ashville; and seal sale chairman, Mrs. Clifford Beaver.

Members agreed to sponsor a display at Pickaway County Fair which will explain the aims of the organization and also give information to those needing the aid of the society.

A case that had been referred to the organization through the county health department was approved for treatment.

According to a spokesman for the group, "We have had very few requests for aid, and we don't have much money, but we are asking that parents who desire help for their crippled children, at least give us a chance to investigate the case. We will do all we can within our limited means."

The second group held its organizational meeting and Miss Margaret Good was selected to head the Pickaway County Nurses Association.

Other officers selected were Mrs. Ralph Stevenson Jr., vice-president; recording secretary, Mrs. Ray Carroll; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Pickens and treasurer, Mrs. Phil E. Smith.

Members agreed to meet the third Tuesday in each month, a regular meeting place to be determined. Mrs. Al Thomas of West Franklin street invited the women to hold their next meeting at the Guest House.

While the primary aim of the group is Civilian Defense, future plans call for establishing further aims and setting up a constitution to govern the organization.

4-H Club Groups Plan County Fair Activities

The club adviser, Mrs. H. M. Piddle, was hostess to members of Darby Cookerettes 4-H Club Monday. The group held a discussion on decorating their County Fair booth.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Project books were completed when Deercreek 4-H Club met last Friday in the home of John, Dick and Virginia Wardell. Plans were discussed for "Youth Night" at the County Fair.

Jim Mowery, David and Paul Drummond will help serve refreshments when the club meets, July 27, in the home of Louise Clark.

Saltcreek Stir and Chatter 4-H Club held its meeting in the Defenbaugh home recently, followed by work on plans for the club's county fair booth.

Refreshments were served by Helen Consolevor.

Tax Returns For Domestic Must Be Filed

"Housewives must file Social Security tax returns for their domestic workers for the second quarter of 1951 by July 31 at the latest," according to Leonard Garrard, representative of the Social Security field office in Columbus, who calls in Pickaway County.

Garrard advised employers of domestics, who have not already done so, to immediately get in touch with the collector of internal revenue. "It is necessary to do this only once," he said, "thereafter the collector's office will mail your tax blanks to you each quarter."

The local office has received many calls from housewives asking how their employees can obtain Social Security numbers.

"An employee who has never had a number before," Garrard explained, "can get one at any Social Security field office. If an employee already has a number, no matter how long ago she got that number, it is still good. An individual gets one number, and one number only, during a lifetime. If she has lost her Social Security card, she can get a duplicate card bearing the same number at the nearest Social Security office."

Garrard added that all tax returns must include the employee's Social Security number, otherwise the employee cannot get credit for the wages being reported. Household employers themselves do not require numbers.

"The new law," Garrard stated, "covers domestics on a compulsory basis and for the first time gives workers regularly employed in a private household the same retirement and survivorship protection that other workers have enjoyed under the Social Security program." He added:

"To be regularly employed, a domestic must work for one employer for 24 or more days in a calendar quarter, either part-time or fulltime, and be paid $50 or more in cash wages. A calendar quarter is a three-month period beginning with Jan. 1, April 1, July 1 or Oct. 1."

Bail Fund Ruling Made By Justice

Group Must Give Up Record

NEW YORK, July 20—New York Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg ruled today that the Civil Rights Congress must hand over to the state superintendent of banks its heretofore secret bail fund record.

Justice Greenberg's decision was made on a petition by CRC trustees to delay their compliance with subpoenas issued by the state agency.

He turned down the petition and ruled that CRC Trustee Abner Green must bring the record to a closed session of the banking department this afternoon.

The banking superintendent subpoenaed the records in an effort to determine whether the CRC has violated state laws by functioning without a license or in any other manner.

JUSTICE Greenberg also signed a CRC show-cause order which requires the state superintendent of banks to explain in supreme court Monday his demand for the records.

The jurist explained his refusal to grant the CRC a stay while still signing the show-cause order was based on the assumption the state was proceeding under the law.

His decision was announced after Assistant Attorney General Murray Sylvester told the court.

"The superintendent of banks believes this organization is insolvent and not by a close margin. This organization has suffered substantial losses and there is need for an examination so that depositors can be protected."

The state agency has been investigating the CRC since July 14, following the forfeiture of $80,000 bond posted by the organization for the four fugitive convicted Communist leaders.

Lush Numbers Racket Smashed

CLEVELAND, July 20—Cleveland police today quizzed 13 persons picked up in raids on a numbers racket office and a clearinghouse game doing a $10,000-a-day business.

Nine persons, three of them women, were nabbed in a raid on the clearinghouse office by Lt. Martin P. Cooney's racket squad yesterday.

Cooney said the clearinghouse headquarters was the biggest one ever raided in Cleveland. The game was an operation clearing about $2.7 million gross a year, he said.

Springfield Set For CAP Show

SPRINGFIELD, July 20—Some 100 light planes will wing over Springfield July 28-29 in the first postwar maneuvers of the Ohio Civil Air Patrol.

The site of the maneuvers was shifted yesterday from Akron to permit more convenient handling of the planes without interfering with normal air traffic.

Highlight of the two-day event will be a simulated sea-air rescue within 50 miles of Springfield. CAP is a voluntary auxiliary of the U.S. Airforce and has 33 squadrons in Ohio.

Dean Ailing

COLUMBUS, July 20—Joseph A. Park, Ohio State university's dean of men, is reported to be seriously ill today. He underwent surgery last Saturday.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

It would be wonderful if most children under fifteen, regardless of the income of their parents, especially children from crowded areas of big cities, could have several weeks in good Summer camps. Fortunately, some civic organizations do make such available for a few underprivileged children.

But by and large the children attending Summer camps are from the more favored families economically.

These children surely need the discipline and social education which the camp provides, both of which they may lack at home. Indeed, a good many children from the so-called better homes are so in want of discipline and many others are so lonely, timid and non-social that they don't choose to go to a Summer camp, and some of them come home soon after they do go.

If you have a child now in camp, behave yourself. Don't telephone him every day or go to the camp often or stay nearby to mother him. Take the advice of the camp director on how you should act or whether you should bring your child home before the camp ends, in case he begs you to do so.

MOST CAMP programs put the emphasis on sports, games

1939 Murderer Given Parole

Lancaster, who lived in Hamilton, first pleaded innocent to a charge of first degree murder, but changed his plea to guilty of second degree murder.

His parole, effective Aug. 29, was among 36 granted inmates of the London Prison Farm by the Ohio Pardon and Parole Commission.

Grim Reminder Is Given

COLUMBUS, July 20—A grim reminder for those who are complacent about civilian defense:

The American Cemetery Association has worked out a plan for mass burial of victims in case of an enemy attack.

William C. Henning, executive secretary of the association, said mass burials would be necessary from the standpoint of health and morale.

Rita Reportedly Settles For Tiny Trust Account

NEW YORK, July 20—Rita Hayworth has agreed to accept an initial payment of $250,000 from Aly Khan as a trust fund for their daughter Yasmin.

The total of the trust fund will be built by further payments but still will be only a fraction of the $3 million the movie star originally asked.

In justifying the comparatively small settlement for Yasmin, the son of the fabulously wealthy Aga Khan is understood to have stressed that to a Moslem sons are regarded as an asset, daughters as a handicap.

Rita, who previously had renounced alimony, also spurned a possible $750,000 lump-sum payment on herself.

The titian-haired beauty, it became known today, has instructed her attorney, Bartley Crum, to accept Aly's initial counter-offer on providing for the 18-month-old Yasmin.

The offered trust fund, starting with the $250,000, will be inherited by Yasmin when she comes of age. It is to be untouchable by Rita or Aly.

In addition, Aly has offered to remit every three months an undisclosed sum, part of which is to be used for Yasmin's upbringing, with the remainder to be added to the basic trust fund. This sum is understood to amount to less than $50,000 a year.

At the time Aly divorced Joan Yarde-Buller Guinness to marry Rita, he is reliably reported to have settled $1 million on each of his two sons. In addition, Joan was authoritatively said to have been given 250,000 pounds sterling.

Bail Fund Ruling Made By Justice

Group Must Give Up Record

NEW YORK, July 20—New York Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg ruled today that the Civil Rights Congress must hand over to the state superintendent of banks its heretofore secret bail fund record.

Justice Greenberg's decision was made on a petition by CRC trustees to delay their compliance with subpoenas issued by the state agency. He turned down the petition and ruled that CRC Trustee Abner Green must bring the record to a closed session of the banking department this afternoon.

The banking superintendent subpoenaed the records in an effort to determine whether the CRC has violated state laws by functioning without a license or in any other manner.

JUSTICE Greenberg also signed a CRC show-cause order which requires the state superintendent of banks to explain in supreme court Monday his demand for the records.

The jurist explained his refusal to grant the CRC a stay while still signing the show-cause order was based on the assumption the state was proceeding under the law.

His decision was announced after Assistant Attorney General Murray Sylvester told the court.

"The superintendent of banks believes this organization is insolvent and not by a close margin. This organization has suffered substantial losses and there is need for an examination so that depositors can be protected."

Lush Numbers Racket Smashed

CLEVELAND, July 20—Cleveland police today quizzed 13 persons picked up in raids on a numbers racket office and a clearinghouse game doing a $10,000-a-day business.

Nine persons, three of them women, were nabbed in a raid on the clearinghouse office by Lt. Martin P. Cooney's racket squad yesterday.

Cooney said the clearinghouse headquarters was the biggest one ever raided in Cleveland. The game was an operation clearing about $2.7 million gross a year, he said.

Springfield Set For CAP Show

SPRINGFIELD, July 20—Some 100 light planes will wing over Springfield July 28-29 in the first postwar maneuvers of the Ohio Civil Air Patrol.

Highlight of the two-day event will be a simulated sea-air rescue within 50 miles of Springfield. CAP is a voluntary auxiliary of the U.S. Airforce and has 33 squadrons in Ohio.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

It would be wonderful if most children under fifteen, regardless of the income of their parents, especially children from crowded areas of big cities, could have several weeks in good Summer camps. Fortunately, some civic organizations do make such available for a few underprivileged children.

But by and large the children attending Summer camps are from the more favored families economically.

These children surely need the discipline and social education which the camp provides, both of which they may lack at home. Indeed, a good many children from the so-called better homes are so in want of discipline and many others are so lonely, timid and non-social that they don't choose to go to a Summer camp, and some of them come home soon after they do go.

If you have a child now in camp, behave yourself. Don't telephone him every day or go to the camp often or stay nearby to mother him. Take the advice of the camp director on how you should act or whether you should bring your child home before the camp ends, in case he begs you to do so.

MOST CAMP programs put the emphasis on sports, games

His parole, effective Aug. 29, was among 36 granted inmates of the London Prison Farm by the Ohio Pardon and Parole Commission.

Grim Reminder Is Given

COLUMBUS, July 20—A grim reminder for those who are complacent about civilian defense: The American Cemetery Association has worked out a plan for mass burial of victims in case of an enemy attack.

William C. Henning, executive secretary of the association, said mass burials would be necessary from the standpoint of health and morale.

Rita Reportedly Settles For Tiny Trust Account

NEW YORK, July 20 — Rita Hayworth has agreed to accept an initial payment of $250,000 from Aly Khan as a trust fund for their daughter Yasmin.

The total of the trust fund will be built by further payments but still will be only a fraction of the $3 million the movie star originally asked.

In justifying the comparatively small settlement for Yasmin, the son of the fabulously wealthy Aga Khan is understood to have stressed that to a Moslem sons are regarded as an asset, daughters as a handicap.

Rita, who previously had renounced alimony, also spurned a possible $750,000 lump-sum payment on herself.

The titian-haired beauty, it became known today, has instructed her attorney, Bartley Crum, to accept Aly's initial counter-offer on providing for the 18-month-old Yasmin.

The offered trust fund, starting with the $250,000, will be inherited by Yasmin when she comes of age. It is to be untouchable by Rita or Aly.

In addition, Aly has offered to remit every three months an undisclosed sum, part of which is to be used for Yasmin's upbringing, with the remainder to be added to the basic trust fund. This sum is understood to amount to less than $50,000 a year.

At the time Aly divorced Joan Yarde-Buller Guinness to marry Rita, he is reliably reported to have settled $1 million on each of his two sons. In addition, Joan was authoritatively said to have been given 250,000 pounds sterling.

'NO TIME FOR ROMANCE'*Young Couples Set Sail On Raft For New Orleans

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., July 20—It was "hi-ho and away we go" Thursday for two young, unmarried couples as they set sail on a raft from New Kensington to New Orleans—all in the interest of sociological research.

The 12 by 20 foot craft, christened the "Lethargia,"—meaning slow moving—was set free at the Ninth Street Bridge in New Kensington shortly after noon, headed by slow stages for New Orleans, 1,800 miles downstream.

Blonde, blue-eyed skipper

Mary Ellen McGrady, 24, a sociology graduate student of the University of Michigan, said just before sailing:

"It is an experiment in confined living. We seek to determine the reactions of one another after two months of confined living—will we hate each other, or what?"

Ceremonies at the launching site just below New Kensington were cheered by more than 1,000 persons gathered to wave the group a gay bon voyage.

THE RAFT was christened by smashing a bottle of "purified" river water over the bow, and off went the adventurers.

Other members of the crew are Geraldine Garcia, 23-year-old Boston artist; Don Brown, 23, of Detroit, who also is a sociology student, and Milton Borden, of New Bedford, Mass.

Miss McGrady says the Pacific crossing of the raft Kon-Tiki encouraged her to organize the trip.

Raised eyebrows caused by the mixture of the crew did not bother the two girls at all.

"After all, we all have esthetic interests," Miss Garcia explained.

"We won't have time for any luxuries like romance," Miss McGrady hastened to add. "And speaking as a sociologist, I would say that a trip like this is hardly conducive to romance."

The group expects to pass Pittsburgh, some 30 miles downstream from New Kensington, by this weekend. Moving with the current at the rate of about one-mile per hour, they expect to land in New Orleans some time after Sept. 15.

Their biggest hazard, as they see it now, is the 58 locks they will have to pass through in the Tom Sawyer-Huck Finn type trip down the Ohio and Mississippi.

Real Estate
Brokers Tied To OPS Regulations

Commissions paid to real estate brokers are subject to the provisions of the ceiling price regulation covering "services."

Edward F. Wagner, director of the Columbus district Office of Price Stabilization, said that "it is apparent that some brokers are not aware that they must file with OPS under the regulation."

Under CPR 34 all individuals or companies engaged in such services must file a statement with OPS. Such statements should list various fees and charges rendered for the service during the base period between Dec. 19, 1950, and Jan. 25, 1951.

Since no government forms are necessary, statements may be submitted on the firms stationery bearing the signature of an executive of the company or the individual concerned.

The OPS official emphasized the necessity for filing as soon as possible.

Provided in the regulation is a penalty for those not filing which permits the OPS to arbitrarily set ceiling prices in delinquencies.

Ruling Is Made
On Tax Windfall
From Legislature

COLUMBUS, July 20—Attorney General C. William O'Neill has ruled that the $9.4 million windfall which local governments will receive must be distributed on the same basis as the regular local government fund.

The Ohio legislature earmarked $12 million for local government aid in the current fiscal year and $18 million for the 1952-53 fiscal year in addition to the windfall, which amounted to $9,402,390. The windfall represents 30 percent of the amount by which state treasury receipts exceeded budget estimates in the two years which ended June 30.

O'Neill's opinion, requested by state tax appeals board Chairman Edward J. Kerwin also clarified the fact that the windfall is in addition to the $12 million appropriated for the current fiscal year.

O'Neill held that the total of $21,402,390 for the current fiscal year would have to be distributed on the statutory formula based 75 percent of the 1949 total municipal tax duplicates and 25 percent on the basis of 1950 population.

The funds, however, will be sent to the county budget commissions for distribution within the counties.

Bridenbaugh said Debolt accidentally shot his wife, Mrs. Ida Mable Debolt, when she got up during the night.

The sheriff quoted Debolt as saying he kept a loaded 38-caliber gun under his pillow because "the Germans are after me."

These Days

at Japan had prevented Russia from accomplishing by four wars and a policy of constant and vigilant militarization.

The Japanese accepted defeat with characteristic fatalism. They assumed the worst. However, the United States sent General Douglas MacArthur to Japan as pro-consul, who, instead of treating this nation as a conquered foe, set out to rebuild it as a bulwark against Soviet Russia. It is this magnanimous policy which is now incorporated in the Dulles Treaty.

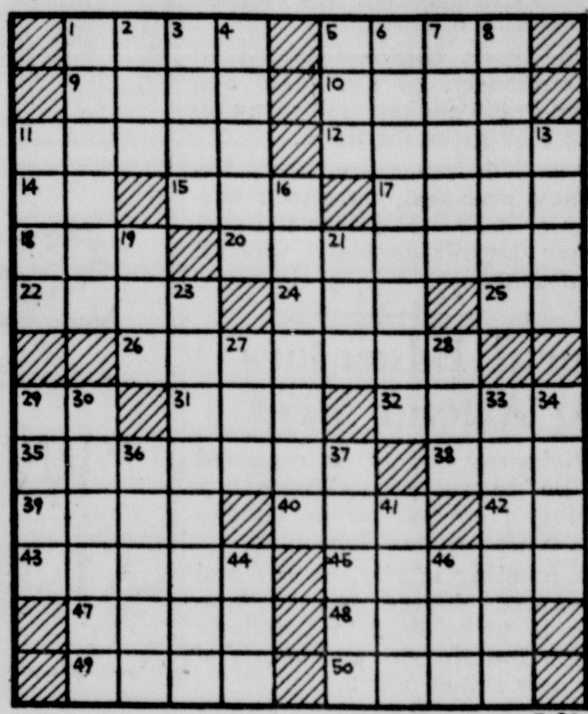

The Japanese recognized the historic significance of MacArthur's role and banded themselves to it. Unlike some of the European countries which regarded the Marshall plan as weakness and the assistance in their reconstruction provided by the United States as selfishly motivated, the Japanese were grateful that they had been saved from the fate of China and cooperated faithfully with MacArthur, hoping that the world situation would turn on its axis so that Japan would be restored to national integrity.

And so, in accordance with the Dulles Treaty, Japan's industry and her military power will be restored and Japan will take the place which she should never have lost.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

New diplomatic tension between the United States and Great Britain emerged as a distinct possibility today with disclosure of exploratory American talks in Madrid on the extent of potential Spanish assistance to the west in event of war.

Secretary of State Acheson has confirmed that Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, U. S. Chief of naval operations, went over the subject thoroughly in conferences with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Madrid dispatches are more emphatic, saying that Franco and Sherman reached complete agreement on basic principles.

And the British foreign office is obviously upset, maintaining that the inclusion of Spain in any aspect of the North Atlantic defense organization is undesirable and that any bilateral agreement will have a bad propaganda effect.

BRITISH SOCIALISM vigorously opposes any military dealings with present-day Spain on the grounds that Franco seized power as the result of a bloody civil war and has retained it only through ruthless totalitarianism.

But certain sections of the British press take the attitude that the American approach in Madrid is the realistic one, and that the British government is being shortsighted and foolhardy on the grounds that if there ever should be a war with Soviet Russia, the West will be well advised to have as many allies as possible.

It is entirely probable that Adm. Sherman was impressed with the potentialities of Spain as an ally in case of need.

It is true that the poverty of the country has let many assets run down and a good deal of repair work would be necessary at airfields and the like.

But geography has endowed Spain with many advantages. There are excellent ports at El Ferrol and Vigo on the Atlantic Coast, Cadiz at the Atlantic end of the Straits of Gibraltar, Cartagena on the Mediterranean mainland, Palma De Mallorca and Port Mahon on the strategically-placed Balearic Islands and Tenerife in the Canaries.

IN ADDITION, there is Ceuta

in North Africa, which could be developed for deep-water craft, and Algeiras, near Gibraltar, whose great sheltered bay would provide a splendid haven.

So far as naval strength is concerned, Spain is not far behind continental Europe.

She has one heavy cruiser and four light cruisers, plus 19 destroyers, some minesweepers and cutters, and is building four new submarines to complement her present fleet of five. They are based on a German World War II model that was interned during hostilities.

But the British—thus far at least—want none of this.

There is reason to believe that fundamentally it is not merely Franco who is responsible for the British attitude.

For centuries, Spain was an obstacle in the path of British expansionism. Neither Socialist nor Conservative Britain forgets this.

Then there was the overthrow of the late King Alfonso XIII which was a painful episode for the British monarchy and the people themselves showed their sympathy by the lavish welcome given to the light-hearted sovereign when he took up a colorful life of exile in England.

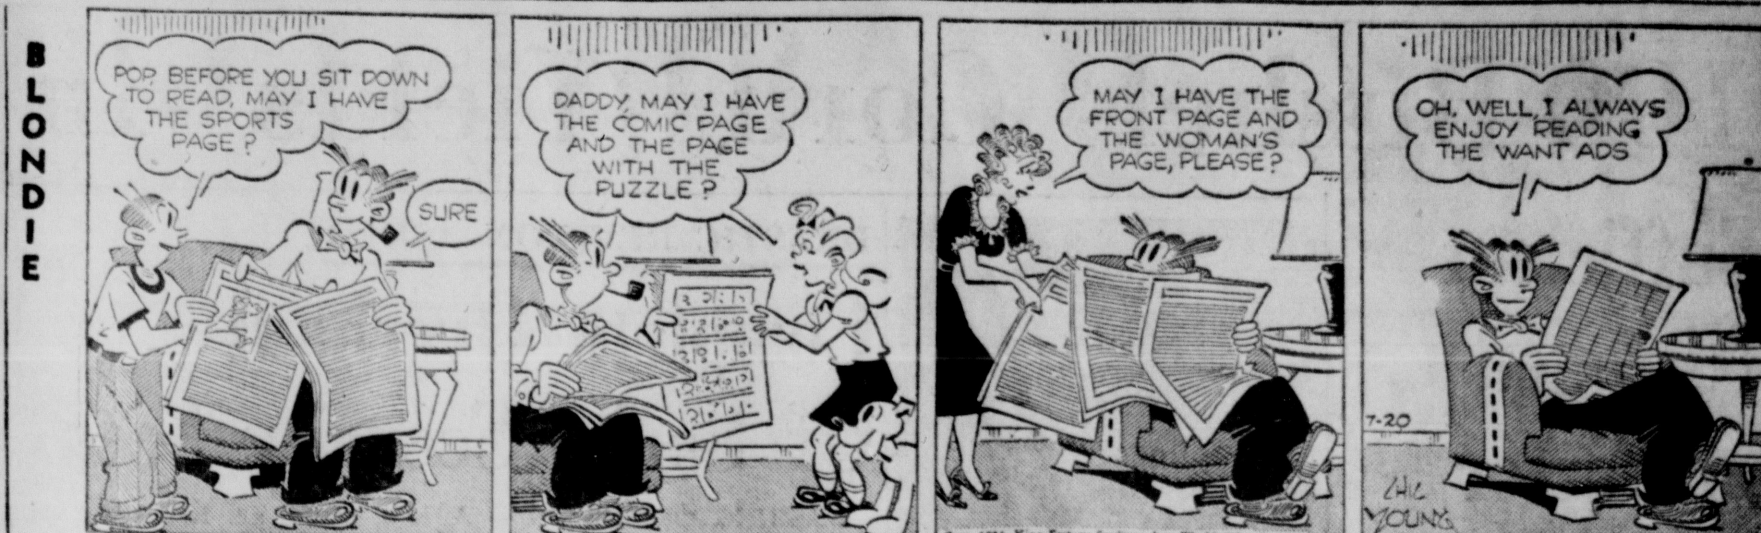

ALSO, THERE is the subject of Gibraltar, which lies on Spanish soil and which Franco has demanded be restored to Spain. If there ever is anything needed to encourage flagging British pride it is the huge rock in the Mediterranean, regarded as much a part of England as Westminster Abbey or Buckingham Palace.

Whether the present British government will be entirely satisfied with Acheson's explanation that Spain's facilities would be used only in event of war is a question.

There may, of course, be a switch in British feeling now that the U. S. government has taken this initiative in Madrid. Britain is undoubtedly hard-pressed in her own military commitments and there is a feeling that cooperation with Spain will deprive other Western European countries of American aid. But Sherman may have come up with a bargain that will make Whitehall look with greater favor on the Spanish Peninsula and its strategic position in the Mediterranean.

In View Of The News

By J. C. Oestreicher
INS Foreign Director

New diplomatic tension between the United States and Great Britain emerged as a distinct possibility today with disclosure of exploratory American talks in Madrid on the extent of potential Spanish assistance to the west in event of war.

Secretary of State Acheson has confirmed that Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, U. S. Chief of naval operations, went over the subject thoroughly in conferences with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Madrid dispatches are more emphatic, saying that Franco and Sherman reached complete agreement on basic principles.

And the British foreign office is obviously upset, maintaining that the inclusion of Spain in any aspect of the North Atlantic defense organization is undesirable and that any bilateral agreement will have a bad propaganda effect.

BRITISH SOCIALISM vigorously opposes any military dealings with present-day Spain on the grounds that Franco seized power as the result of a bloody civil war and has retained it only through ruthless totalitarianism.

But certain sections of the British press take the attitude that the American approach in Madrid is the realistic one, and that the British government is being shortsighted and foolhardy on the grounds that if there ever should be a war with Soviet Russia, the West will be well advised to have as many allies as possible.

It is entirely probable that Adm. Sherman was impressed with the potentialities of Spain as an ally in case of need.

It is true that the poverty of the country has let many assets run down and a good deal of repair work would be necessary at airfields and the like.

But geography has endowed Spain with many advantages.

There are excellent ports at El Ferrol and Vigo on the Atlantic Coast, Cadiz at the Atlantic end of the Straits of Gibraltar, Cartagena on the Mediterranean mainland, Palma De Majorca and Port Mahon on the strategically-placed Balearic Islands and Tenerife in the Canaries.

IN ADDITION, there is Ceuta

in North Africa, which could be developed for deep-water craft, and Algeiras, near Gibraltar, whose great sheltered bay would provide a splendid haven.

So far as naval strength is concerned, Spain is not far behind continental Europe.

She has one heavy cruiser and four light cruisers, plus 19 destroyers, some minesweepers and cutters, and is building four new submarines to complement her present fleet of five. They are based on a German World War II model that was interned during hostilities.

But the British—thus far at least—want none of this. . . .

There is reason to believe that fundamentally it is not merely Franco who is responsible for the British attitude.

For centuries, Spain was an obstacle in the path of British expansionism. Neither Socialist nor Conservative Britain forgets this.

Then there was the overthrow of the late King Alfonso XIII which was a painful episode for the British monarchy and the people themselves showed their sympathy by the lavish welcome given to the light-hearted sovereign when he took up a colorful life of exile in England.

ALSO, THERE is the subject of Gibraltar, which lies on Spanish soil and which Franco has demanded be restored to Spain. If there ever is anything needed to encourage flagging British pride it is the huge rock in the Mediterranean, regarded as much a part of England as Westminster Abbey or Buckingham Palace.

Whether the present British government will be entirely satisfied with Acheson's explanation that Spain's facilities would be used only in event of war is a question.

There may, of course, be a switch in British feeling now that the U. S. government has taken this initiative in Madrid. Britain is undoubtedly hard-pressed in her own military commitments and there is a feeling that cooperation with Spain will deprive other Western European countries of American aid. But Sherman may have come up with a bargain that will make Whitehall look with greater favor on the Spanish Peninsula and its strategic position in the Mediterranean.

100-Bushel Corn Yields In Reach

Sufficient Nitrogen Is Factor

Legume Benefits To Soil Told

Corn yields of 100 bushels per acre are within the reach of virtually every Pickaway County farm.

It may even be possible to push yields up to 150 bushels in good years when all growing conditions are most favorable. In other years, however, yields may drop below the 100-bushel mark because lack of rainfall may be the limiting factor.

These are the beliefs of the Midwest Soil Improvement Committee, based on a recent statement by C. M. Woodruff, University of Missouri soil specialist.

Getting 100-bushel corn crops is largely a matter of giving the crop sufficient nitrogen. Lack of nitrogen is the bottleneck that has held back yields.

EXPERIMENTS at Columbia, Mo., show that two pounds of nitrogen are required to grow a bushel of corn—one pound to grow the stalks and another to grow the ears. Thus 200 pounds of nitrogen must be available to the plants for a 100-bushel corn yield per acre.

Growing well-fertilized legumes in the rotation will add 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre, enough for 50 of the proposed 100 bushels. The legumes have other vital benefits; they add crop-feeding organic matter to the soil, repair damaged structure, improve drainage and water-holding capacity and mellow the soil.

Remaining 100 pounds of nitrogen must be supplied by the soil and through the use of commercial fertilizer.

Authorities say that adding nitrogen alone won't do the whole job, for corn needs a well-balanced supply of plant nutrients. To make use of extra nitrogen, the soil must have a high stock of phosphate and potash, too. Crop yields can't be increased by adding one plant food, if others are lacking.

Testing your soil is the surest way to find out what plant foods it needs. Such tests will help make more efficient use of fertilizers carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash.

Hog Prices Drop Sharply

WASHINGTON, July 20—The Agriculture Department reports that hog prices dropped sharply in the last week, while marketings continued ahead of a year ago and the previous week. In some of the Corn Belt states, there was a slight drop in both weight and killing quality.

Sows, in particular, lacked the finish generally carried at this time of the year. Officials said these facts seem to indicate that receipts are starting to taper off.

School Tuition Procedure Set By Attorney

COLUMBUS, July 20—Jackson County officials have a clear-cut method today for handling payment of tuition for children who are "jumping boundary" lines to attend schools out their own district.

Attorney General C. William O'Neill ruled yesterday that schools may contract with each other for the exchange and "cancellation" of tuition or directly with the parents.

A third step, according to the attorney general, would be to permit the board "in its sound discretion," to receive children from another district without charging tuition. In this case, however, the board cannot receive state subsidies for the "boundary jumpers."

Prosecutor Benson L. Owens of Jackson County asked for the decision. He explained that children of Jackson Township leave their own school district to attend the Coal Local School District without authorization from their own board of education.

DRASTIC REVISION ASKED

Complete Overhaul Of Social Security Seen

WASHINGTON, July 20 — A "complete overhaul" of the social security old-age and survivors insurance program appeared in prospect today as the Senate prepared to vote on amendments to boost present benefits.

Suggestions for "radical changes" came from Sens. Taft (R) Ohio, and Millikin (R) Colo. They were supported by several Democrats.

Apparently scheduled for approval was a finance committee compromise raising old-age pension, blind and aid to dependent children contributions to states. The amendment received tentative approval yesterday.

The committee whittled Senate Majority Leader McFarland's original $5 increase proposal down to $3 for pensions and the blind. The aid to dependent children contribution would be raised by an average of $1.60.

THE CALL for drastic revision of the federal insurance system came as Republicans launched an attack on another amendment offered by Sens. Humphrey (D) Minn., and Lehman (D) N. Y. It would have provided a similar $3 raise in payments to retired workers under social security, or to their widows.

Humphrey practically conceded defeat during floor debate. Millikin led the assault on the present social security system, in a sharp verbal exchange with Humphrey.

The Coloradoan, ranking minority member of the finance committee, called the $14.7 billion sum, gathered in withholding tax from employers and employees, "a spurious trust fund."

Humphrey argued that the principle was not too different from that of private insurance companies, who, he said, "do not bury gold, but buy stocks and bonds."

Taft proposed "radical revisions," probably early next year, and a Democrat, Sen. Frear (D) Del., suggested dispersal of the entire insurance fund in cash to the states.

Shoeshine Boys Get Big Tips

INDIANAPOLIS, July 20—Four small Indianapolis shoeshine boys today hoped a customer doesn't change his mind.

One of the boys gave the customer a shine Wednesday and couldn't believe it when he paid for it with a $100 bill.

The three companions looked on enviously, so the man dug down in his pockets and came up with $150 more for them.

A policeman assured them the money was real, then took custody of it to make sure the customer doesn't decide it was all a mistake.

Local Educators To Attend Meet

Pickaway County is expected to be represented Wednesday during a special school legislation conference in Columbus.

A meeting of city, county and exempted village superintendents is to be held in the State Office Building for discussion of the new school aid bill.

George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools, is expected to attend the special session. Superintendent Frank Fischer or Board Clerk Virgil Cress will represent Circleville schools.

Air Passengers Continue Flight

RICHMOND, Va., July 20—Thirty-five of 48 Eastern Airline passengers decided last night that they no longer wanted a plane ride to Miami after a Constellation in which they were riding made an emergency landing in a cornfield.

The four-engine plane made the sudden "wheels-up" landing eight miles southeast of Richmond. No one was injured, but when Eastern sent another plane to take the passengers southward only 13 wanted to continue the flight.

Average BUC Check: $19.42

Unemployed Pickaway County workers received $1,280.50 from the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation during June.

The money went to claimants under the Ohio law. C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, said that $25 of the total was in dependency allowances. The average weekly check paid in June was $19.42.
